Cancer claims life of Antioch bookstore owner

By MICHAEL H. BABICZ
Community Editor

"Not everybody gets to fulfill their lifelong dream."

Judith Perryman, wife of Dale R. Perryman, founder of Books etc. in Antioch, commented on her husband's passing.

"He just had to cut out early," she added.

Battling with prostate cancer, diagnosed six years ago, Judith Perryman said she, her husband and family viewed the news "as a wake-up call."

"It's very overwhelming," said Amanda Perryman, their daughter who helped open the store with her father on Main St. in downtown Antioch.

The 58-year-old Dale Perryman, who resided in Long Lake, died Jan. 8 at Glenbrook Hospital in Glenview following his battle with cancer.

"Our daughter, Amanda, who worked along side him at the store will continue to keep the store open," Judith Perryman said.

Judith Perryman said her work as a business owner of The Tulip Patch sparked her husband's desire to start his own enterprise.

"He thought I was having too much fun," she said with a chuckle. "It was fun having him as a fellow business owner downtown."

The diagnosis of the cancer proved to be a positive influence for Dale Perryman, a retired U.S. Navy veteran who served in the Vietnam conflict as part of his 20 years of service.

"We thought we had it licked," said Judith Perryman regarding the cancer. "Instead it worked as a wake-up call. We decided to do things which were important to us."

Thus came the opening of the bookstore.

Working a full day in his final day at the store on Jan. 5, the late Perryman and his wife left for a cruise the following morning. The cruise was a Christmas gift from his wife.

When he continued to show signs of his health failing, Judith Perryman made arrangements and her husband was flown by MEDIVAC off the ship.

Although technically listed as passing away at the hospital, Judith Perryman said her husband actually died aboard a lear jet over Florida.

"He would have liked that," Judith Perryman said. "Although he didn't get to actually finish the cruise, he is still cruising."

"The last six months were a real struggle for him, as he was working with a great deal of pain," she explained. "Keeping active at the bookstore was a great motivator for him during his final months."

"He worked every day no matter what," Amanda Perryman said. "It's what kept him alive, fulfilling his dream."

In keeping with Dale Perryman's wishes, Books etc. was open for business as usual on Jan. 10.

"I'm privileged to have been married to him for almost 25 years," Judith Perryman concluded. "He will be missed by many including his wife, family and friends."

A memorial service was held Jan. 12 at Trinity Lutheran Church in Long Lake. Dale Perryman is survived by his wife, daughter and one son, Glen, who lives in California.

Memorials may be made to Trinity Lutheran Church or the Kellogg Cancer Center c/o Glenbrook Hospital.

Students learn school subjects through the performing arts

By MICHAEL H. BABICZ
Community Editor

Metamorphosis. Acting. Dancing. Storytelling. What do those things have to do with elementary school? In the case of Emmons School on Beach Grove Rd. in Antioch, a lot.

An eight-week Illinois Arts Council residency program is underway at the school. The arts council covers 60 percent of the cost of the program, with the Emmons School Board of Education and Parent-Teacher Organization cover the remainder of the cost. Additionally, the Green Light Performing Company based in Chicago has four of its members working with students and teachers in grades K-8 at Emmons.

An artist works with each class for four sessions over the period. This is done to put together a "mini-performance."

In addition, a core group of students in grades three through eight are selected. These students work after school with the artists three days per week.

A total of 29 students applied for the core group this year, according to Cyndy Vandrush, Emmons principal, who was originally a K-12 art teacher.

The core group will work independently from what is being done within particular classrooms, as far as subject content.

This residency's core focus is "metamorphosis." The students will explore the meaning of the word and incorporate different aspects which the students choose into a performance to conclude the eight-week session.

Vandrush explained the origination of the program came through the Arts in Education program of the arts council.

"Part of it deals with the state curriculum goals, which are pushing to include more of the arts," Vandrush admits. "It's a little harder for elementary school teachers to incorporate regular lessons into the arts."

At Emmons, visual and music arts teachers are both on staff. There is no performing arts teacher at this time.

To stay within the focus of the grant, the Green Light Performing Company is able to work with both teachers and students to bring out various performing arts along with other facets of the school curriculum.

"This particular company works very well with the teachers and the students," Vandrush said. "The teacher who wants to enhance a particular part of their curriculum receives help from the performing arts people to enhance that area."

"They work as an educational team," Vandrush emphasized.

Vandrush has observed the teachers and performers working well toward tying the two facets of the curriculum together while being able to meet Illinois state goals.

Domenick Danza, founder and artistic director for Green Light, explained the role of his individual performers in their work at Emmons.

"We have musical interactive performances which teach subjects," Danza said, admitting science plays a major part in most of them.

ACHS considers change to weight placed on honors classes

By MICHAEL J. BIVONA
Staff Reporter

Every summer, as students start looking at courses they might want to take, whether or not to take an honors class has never really been an issue.

Antioch Community High School (ACHS) is considering a change in how students' grades are calculated into their grade point average (GPA) while enrolled in honors courses.

The issue came up at the ACHS board meeting Jan. 6 as Sydney Klocke, ACHS assistant principal for curriculum and instruction, stressed her view desiring making ACHS' honors courses into classes clearly representing a higher standard of learning.

"I want to make our honors classes truly honors classes," Klocke explained.

ACHS uses a five-point system when calculating grades, with an F resulting in one point and an A resulting in five points.

Honors classes give an extra point to students receiving C's or better, with A's getting six points instead of the usual five.

The proposed change would give a half-point to weighted grades, instead of the full point students now receive.

For example, a student receiving B's in all honors courses is presently receiving a 5.0 GPA, the same as students getting A's in all regular classes. The change would give the honors student a 4.5 GPA.

This change would make honors classes less essential when students choose their courses but would continue to give honors students an advantage at grade time.

According to Klocke, there are two concerns with the way the students' grades are weighted now.

"One reason for the proposal is to make sure kids are choosing honors classes for the right reasons," Klocke said.

In the system used now, ACHS students might be taking honors classes just to get the extra point for their GPA and not to better their education in a higher learning environment.

The other concern expressed by Klocke is students looking to keep their GPA as high as possible are shying away from classes that are not weighted, but they may be classes the students are interested in.

A student wanting to participate in a music or art course probably would not enroll in that class because the grade is not weighted.

"I'm concerned with students not taking other classes because they're not a weighted class," Klocke said. "We want to encourage them to take as many different courses as they can."

After the proposal was brought up at the meeting, a long discussion ensued, bringing out opinions on both sides of whether or not a change is needed in the grading system.

"I think it's worthy of discussion," said ACHS superintendent Dr. Dennis Hockney. "But I think it's important we look at doing it within the system we have."

ACHS trio to 'play Peoria' for concert

Students honored as performers in all-state musical event

By MICHAEL H. BABICZ
Community Editor

They'll be playing in Peoria!

Three Antioch Community High School students have earned the honor of performing at the Illinois Music Educators Association (IMEA) All-State concert Jan. 26-Jan. 29, in Peoria.

ACHS will be well represented with one student performing in each of the following: Aaron James in choir, Jeffrey Ouper in band and Peter Gillette in orchestra.

"We're really proud of these young men," said Dr. James Love, ACHS principal. "It's very competitive in the state of Illinois. For these students to be recognized is quite an accomplishment. We're extremely proud of their performance."

James, an 18-year-old senior member of Acappella and Madrigal choirs at ACHS, received the all-state recognition following District VII competition at Maine East High School.

Ouper, a 16-year-old junior who plays bass clarinet, received the band award following district competition at Niles North High School.

Gillette, a 16-year-old junior plays trumpet. Gillette's honor was achieved by being among the top four trumpet players in the district competition held at Niles. Being selected for the orchestra means additional challenges for Gillette when it comes to the state exhibition.

Having played trumpet for more than seven years, Gillette comes from a musical background. Gillette's dad, Thomas from Richmond, has a music degree and is Waukegan City Band director. Mother, Debbie, from Antioch, is a piano teacher at Trinity International College and serves as organist at Antioch United Methodist Church. Gillette's sister, Sara, is a junior music major at Lawrence University in Appleton, Wis.

"I've been exposed to music all my life," Gillette said. "I've been playing the trumpet since I was in the fourth grade. I just started singing a couple of years ago."

"Peter is able to participate at a very high level," Love said of Gillette. "He has been a featured soloist in our marching and jazz bands. He's extremely talented."

Although Ouper and Gillette both earned a spot in the band portions, both are members of choirs at ACHS as well.

The students initially signed up to compete. Once their applications were accepted, they in turn received music to review and practice prior to the pre-district audition. Following scores at the preliminary level, those who are high enough advance.

The second level, District, was at John Hersey High School in Arlington Heights. At that point, the three ACHS students were divided into the levels at which they will perform at state.

In the case of the choral presentations, part of the scoring is based upon stage presence. Due to this requirement, judges view the contestants.

For the band/orchestra auditions, a "blind judging" is used. Judges have their backs to the contestants allowing them to base their scores completely on the musical content.

Raw scores are awarded at the District level. After comparison to scores from other Districts, in the case of the choirs, they are selected for the state awards.

Band is set up somewhat differently. Contestants receive a scale sheet which they must perform. In addition, a certain amount of site reviewing must be done.

"There is music which you've

Antioch Community High School musicians Peter Gillette, junior, Aaron James, senior, and Jeffrey Ouper, junior, will represent the school in orchestra, choir and band, respectively, at the Illinois Music Educators Association All-State concert in Peoria.—Photo by Sandy Bressner never seen before," explained Ouper, son of Roberta and Jerome Ouper from Antioch. "You read it and play it the best you can."

Two etudes, pieces of music, which students had been given ahead of time, are practiced and then performed for the judges. Following the performances, in both the case of the choral and band, students do not find out where they ranked for between one and two weeks.

"We kept watching the web site for IMEA," Ouper admits.

Making the state level is a great accomplishment, though it means being one of about 200 students selected statewide.

"Most of the best players are from the Chicagoland area," Ouper explained. "It's rare for people to make state. There's just been a couple of students from our school who have made district in the past."

For all three students, diversity and being involved have been keys to their success.

James has played varsity basketball in the past and this year will be a member of the varsity boys volleyball team.

Plans for James, who has been singing since the 6th grade at Antioch Upper Grade School, after graduation include attending a school similar to Augustana College. "I want to have the flexibility so that I can participate in athletics, in addition to academics," James admits.

James comes from a family with a musical background. James' parents, Amy and Peter James, both participated in band during high school and while attending college at Illinois State University. James' younger sister, Lila Kate, is a sophomore participating in choir at ACHS.

Love commends James for his versatility, being involved in various choirs in addition to athletics. "Aaron has a wide variety of experiences and has been in a number of activities for several years."

"I'm pretty excited and happy to be representing the school and our district at state," Ouper's parents are Roberta and Jerome from Antioch. Ouper's older brother, Andy, is attending college in Milwaukee.

"I've heard a lot about going to state, that it's a great experience," Ouper said. "I look forward to meeting a lot of other people who are very involved in their own schools."

"Jeff has been playing in the highest band, the wind ensemble, since he was a freshman," Love said of Ouper. "Jeff became very accomplished as a musician at a very young age."

"It's certainly an honor to be selected with the kind of company we'll be keeping at state," James explained. "It's a great environment with a lot of enthusiastic kids who are dedicated and talented."

In all three cases, the students had the honor of working with guest conductors from various colleges. Gillette and Ouper's orchestra/band instructor was from the University of Iowa. The choral director was from Augustana College.

During the three days in Peoria, the students will be exposed to top musicians from throughout the state and another group of guest conductors.

"I'm very excited," said Gillette about going to state. "I like it because it's opening so many new doors."

"You meet some kids who you've played with in district festivals before," Gillette continued. "You become part of a community of musicians. There's a great amount of learning that goes on, which is quite remarkable."

"For people involved in music, I'd encourage them to audition for a contest like this," James said, to which the others agreed. "Whatever you gain, it's always a good experience, whether you make it or not."

"It's a wonderful reference," James added.

Following the three-day "workshop," the trio looks at the concert on the final day as a challenge and exciting conclusion.

Upon returning to ACHS, fellow students, faculty and the community will have an opportunity to see the three state-award recipients perform as members of the Madrigal performers.

Books etc. offering January art exhibit

Looking for something different? Look no further than downtown Antioch.

The art exhibit of Jeff Johnston from Bristol, Wis. is being featured this month at Books etc., 901 Main St.

Walworth and Kenosha counties provided much of the inspiration for Johnston's works using pastel, colored pencil and oil. Many of the pieces have been part of numerous art shows including several solo shows in local libraries.

OUR TOWN

Michael H. Babicz

Notecards of pictures made by Johnston are available throughout southern Wisconsin.

A member of the Great Lakes Art Association, Johnston has his works available to both individuals and corporations.

Hours for viewing at Books etc. are 10 a.m.-9 p.m. Monday through Friday, 10 a.m.-4 p.m. Saturday and noon-4 p.m. Sunday. The showing of Johnston's works continues throughout January.

For information, phone Books etc. 838-2665.

Congratulations to a couple of Antioch residents honored at the Premier Racing Production's Night of Champions awards dinner for Wilmot Speedway Jan. 8 at Maravella's Restaurant in Fox Lake.

Tommy Sexton received his first ever Star Trac 410 Outlaw Winged Sprints championship honors. This marked Sexton's third track crown overall, having won previously in mini-modifieds and MRA modifieds.

Frank Moser is the first recipient of the Ray Toft Dedication to Motorsports award. The award, named in honor of retired Wilmot promoter and former Antioch mayor, Ray Toft, recognizes Moser's efforts to promote motorsports by making appearances at various community events, speaking to scout troops, etc.

Both are well deserving of their honors, as is Toft of the recognition of his many years of involvement with motorsports.

If you have interesting information or anecdotes to submit for "Our Town" call staff reporter Mike Babicz at 223-8161, ext. 138 or e-mail, edit@lnd.com."

Win a cruise, celebrate a wedding anniversary—what a winning combination.

Mr. and Mrs. Steve Keown of Lake Villa will have an extra special 25th wedding anniversary celebration. The Keowns have never taken a cruise before. In addition, this year will mark their silver wedding anniversary.

The couple had the grand prize winning ticket in the Lakes Area Community Band Music Fund Raffle held in December.

In addition to the 7-day Caribbean cruise, the Keowns will receive airfare plus $250 spending money towards taxes and port charges.

The lucky ticket was sold by band flautist Mary Stringer.

"Through the help of Marcia Junas from Cruise Holidays of Lincolnshire, Eric Olson from State Bank of the Lakes, plus all band members, this was an extremely successful fund raiser," said Lakes Band Musical Director Steve Porch.

"On behalf of all the band personnel, we thank them for their support and wish the Keowns a great cruise," Porch said. "Bon voyage."

'Casual Day' to benefit Diabetes Association

By MICHAEL H. BABICZ
Community Editor

"Casual" day not just laying back.

Employees at First National Bank-Employee Owned will be dressing down somewhat on Friday, Jan. 21 to help raise funds for a charity.

It is all part of the "Casual Because We Care" program in which First National employees are allowed to dress casual for the day in return for a $2 donation to a designated fund or charity.

Customers who desire to do so will be allowed to make a donation to the specific charity on that day as well.

The "Casual Because We Care Day" Jan. 21 will benefit "Team Diabetes."

The "Team" is a group of people who have committed to running the Kona Marathon on Kona Island in Hawaii, and will donate the proceeds to the American Diabetes Association.

The 26.2 mile marathon is scheduled to take place in June, 2000.

ART

at Emmons, has been operating for seven years. Performances have been created "as companion pieces" to various exhibits at the Field Museum, Adler Planetarium, Peggy Notebarte Nature Museum and Chicago Botanic Garden.

"The performance will teach the scientific topic," Danza explained.

To make sure the performance's material is authentic, once a script is put together it is reviewed by researchers and scientists which Green Light has a working relationship with. They check for content accuracy.

A committee of Chicago Public School teachers review the script to ensure it is maintaining its curriculum connections.

In the case of the performances at Emmons, Green Light uses the same basic principles as the larger productions, just on a smaller scale, Danza explained.

"Each classroom will do a mini-performance structured to a particular curriculum," Danza said.

Regardless of whether it's a major museum production, a core presentation or a classroom mini-scale production, all will encompass three basic components of acting, dancing and story telling.

Each of the Green Light staff which comes to Emmons or works with the core group has a specific area of expertise. The fourth person is a composer who will take what the students come up with, write lyrics and music, and compose an original score for the specific performance.

"The students will do it," Danza said of the performance input. "It may be either improvised or choreographed."

The focus of the production may come from the classroom teacher. An example might be geography. Once the idea is given to Danza, he meets initially with the class, going through some warm up exercises.

In about a 30-minute session with a classroom of kindergarten students, Danza was observed using music to incorporate listening and storytelling. The next step would be to incorporate a little bit of dance.

"We'll do what they want to do,"

Danza said, admitting he and the other Green Light staff pretty much leave it to the students what the performance ends up looking like. "It'll be structured out of their ideas."

Examples of previous classes projects at Emmons include fifth graders who used dance to show Newton's Laws of Motion, first graders who did Dr. Seuss stories and seventh graders who enacted various parts having to do with the development of the constitution.

Some second graders chose to use personal stories with a certain theme and then decided as a group to act out a particular one.

Mathematics elements were explained by a second grade class through performing parts of "Peter Pan."

A fifth grade class used narration and dance to demonstrate how cities are developed beginning with small towns and working their way up.

"The students are really good," Danza said with an enthusiastic smile. "The older grades, once they get into it, it really flows."

"The younger ones will do anything," Danza said, admitting getting them started is sometimes a little easier.

"The students seem to really enjoy it," Vandrush said, exemplified by many of last year's core group applying again this year.

"It's not just a language arts group which takes a story and turns it into a play," Varnish points out. "This can use health, science or other subjects."

Once the core group students come up with the basic ideas and script for metamorphosis, Dan Linz from Green Light will write, compose and record the music to be used in the performance.

An example of the way the students may incorporate music, dance and story telling for metamorphosis might be by using butterflies and their life cycle.

"The script will probably end up using change, social change and growing up," Danza suggests.

In the case of Emmons School, the metamorphosis in learning is already well underway.

Marketing pro offers services to the 'little guy': small business

By MICHAEL H. BABICZ
Community Editor

Good marketing, writing and design are the three main ingredients in providing effective print communication, as well as the mainstays of a new business in Antioch.

Resident Kathy Beimfohr operates Keystrokes out of an office in the loft of her home.

Beimfohr began her own business about a year ago after seeing the need of smaller companies and individuals for marketing communications services.

"I used to be involved in a small business where we did our own advertising and communication," said Beimfohr, by day a marketing communications professional for a downtown firm. "I could see that it is difficult for small businesses or individuals to find help along those lines."

Beimfohr viewed her ability to provide some form of communication and advertising services at a reasonable price than agencies as an opportunity.

"I saw how expensive it was for small businesses to promote their products," Beimfohr said. "We started producing our own ads for our business. I thought how great it would be to have someone who knows marketing and advertising put together a piece that could meet a budget."

"I realized that a lot of the work, I could do," Beimfohr said. "I saw first hand small business people who don't have the kind of help a big company can afford. It's hard for a small business to allocate money for that type of advertising.

Among the areas which Keystrokes offers assistance are word processing, cassette transcription, promotional communications and special requests.

Included in word processing items which Beimfohr offers are documents, labels/letters, manuals/manuscripts, proposals, resumes, cover letters and term papers.

Promotional services include brochures, business cards, flyers, slide presentations and display advertisements.

Beimfohr views her main service as working with sales representatives, professionals, small business owners and persons who are unable to hire administrative staff to perform the various functions because of a small budget.

"Before I design something, I like to talk with the client to gain an understanding of what their business is about and to identify their market," Beimfohr explained. "Then I will put together a promotional piece and help to make sure they get it into the right hands of the people they wish to market to."

"I do a lot of marketing research in my regular job," Beimfohr explained. "Marketing is my strong point. It utilizes psychology. The more you know about human behavior, the more powerfully you can persuade them in print."

Combining marketing, communication and design are major focuses when it comes to formulating a printed advertising piece for a client, according to Beimfohr, who formerly worked as a fashion designer.

"It creates a first impression a person might see," Beimfohr emphasized. "If the art piece is appealing, it helps the person to pick it out."

Beimfohr develops a fundamental marketing focus and mates it into a basic printed piece and in turn, is fundamental to formulating a good message to the customer.

"We'll try and write from the consumer's point of view, identifying who the reader is," Beimfohr said.

Beimfohr and Keystrokes clients include Sterling Sails, Sail Bright, Coldwell-Banker Real Estate of Lake Forest, Malya's Boutique in Chicago, several individual sales representatives and some restaurants.

"My main purpose is to help people market their products and services correctly," Beimfohr said. "If they have a need for exciting brochures or display advertising, I'll work with them to develop who they are trying to reach for a market and stay within their budget."

"I do believe in the effectiveness of good, printed communication pieces," Beimfohr concluded. "Good marketing, writing and design are most important."

To contact Beimfohr at Keystrokes, phone her Chicago office 312-938-0200.

Public Notice

Proposed Renewal of a Federally Enforceable State Operating Permit (FESOP) for NuWay Speaker Products, Inc., Antioch

NuWay Speaker Products, Inc., has requested that the Illinois EPA renew its federally enforceable state operating permit for its cone coating and drying ovens located at 945 Anita Avenue in Antioch. The Illinois EPA is accepting comments on the proposed renewal of the permit. The permit will contain federally enforceable limitations that restrict the facility's emissions to non-major levels. The permit will be enforceable by the USEPA, as well as the Illinois EPA.

Persons wanting more information may obtain copies of the draft permits and project summaries at www.epa.gov/ARD-R5/permits/ilon-line.htm (please look for the documents under All Permit Records, FESOP, Renewal). These documents along with the applications may also be reviewed at Illinois EPA's offices at 1701 South First Avenue in Maywood, 708/338-7900 (please call ahead to assure that someone will be available to assist you) and 1340 North Ninth St., Springfield, 217/782-7027. Copies of the documents will be made available upon request.

Comments are requested on the proposed permit. Comments must be postmarked before midnight February 12, 2000. If sufficient interest is expressed in a permit, a hearing may be held. Requests for information, comments, and questions should be directed to Brad Frost, Division of Air Pollution Control, Illinois Environmental Protection Agency, PO Box 19506, Springfield, Illinois 62794-9506, phone 217/782-2113, TDD phone number 217/782-9143 or call toll-free 1-888/372-1996 and leave a message for Brad Frost stating your name, telephone number, and the company that you are calling about.

SCHOOL DIGEST

AUGS band notes

The Band Parents Association had lots of positive news heading into the holiday break.

A big thanks to all who helped with the candy sale. Terry Haley served as chair for the sale with Diane Johnson as assistant chair. A total of 757 boxes were sold.

Leading the way was Antioch Upper Grade School band with 397 boxes sold. W.C. Petty band accounted for 351. Six boxes were sold by Lakes Area Music. Mr. Bush helped out with three boxes.

With 33 boxes sold, Joe Cook, Upper Grade beginner band, won first place. Second place was a tie with Charlie Haley, Upper Grade senior band, and Robert Haley, Upper Grade junior band, each sold 14 boxes. Third place went to Stephanie Mitchell, W.C. Petty beginner band, with a dozen boxes sold. Winners of the 3 lb. candy bars are Jeff Gloyer from Upper Grade and Ashley Potempa from W.C. Petty.

Prizes were presented to students who sold five boxes or more.

The band parents thanked the following businesses for their participation: Antioch Bowl, Baskin & Robbins, Books etc., Dairy Queen, Fantastic Sam's, Hannah's Home Accents, J.J. Blinkers, Josie's Doll & Teddy Bear Collectibles, Lakes Area Music, Markus Gurnee Cinema, Video Empire, Ringside Sports, Sunshine Books, The Tulip Patch and Walmart, Round Lake.

Thanks to Sharon Lear, uniform chair, for her efforts and assistance from Nancie Kiddo, Diane Johnson and Terry Haley, in getting students fitted.

The next event will be the Winter Band Concert at W.C. Petty on Wednesday, Jan. 19.

by JIM WARNKEN, President, North Star Travel, Inc.

The state of Hawaii actually consists of a chain of islands, the five major of which are Oahu, Maui, Kauai, Molokai, and one actually named Hawaii, but better known as the "Big Island."

You're probably most familiar with Honolulu and its tourist area of Waikiki beach, which is the more populated and most visited island of Oahu. Today, however, we're going to talk about the largest, but one of the least visited, islands of the Hawaiian islands, and the namesake of the state. I'm speaking, of course, of the Big Island of Hawaii.

You'll not find the "Don Ho Show" playing at any of the nightclubs on the Big Island. In fact, you'll be hard pressed to find even a nightclub, except maybe at one of the larger resorts.

You will find orchards, farms, a coffee plantation, and a 1/4-million-acre cattle ranch, complete with Hawaiian cowboys.

You can sun yourself on beaches of the color of your choice. On the Big Island, beaches come in white, black, yellow, and even emerald green.

I once hiked through a tropical valley on the Big Island, where I found wild oranges the size of grapefruits and crystal-clear streams filled with rare freshwater shrimp.

The Big Island is home to both an active volcano, spewing a river of fiery lava into the ocean, as well as a 14,000-foot, snow-covered mountain. Talk about fire and ice!

If the Big Island interests you, plan on spending a day or two in the Hilo area—even though it's on the "rainy" side of the island. You'll get plenty of sun later on the Kona side of the island.

Hilo will be your base for visiting Volcano National Park, where you can hike down into Kilauea Crater, the most active of Hawaii's two volcanoes. (Yes, it's safe!)

While in Hilo, get up early one morning and visit the fish auction at the Susan Fish Market for a good photo op of Hawaii's local fishing fleet and their catch. Then head over to Banyan Drive, with its canopy of banyan trees with plaques identifying who planted them. You'll find names like Amelia Earhart and Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

After a visit to the orchid farms and many waterfalls, compliments of the afternoon rain you're likely to encounter in Hilo, it's time to head to the sunny beaches of Kona.

Our failed attempts at New Year's resolutions

Well it has been two weeks now since the New Year began and once again we all find ourselves settled right back into the groove in which we strayed from for about 52 hours. Although our daily routine was a bit disrupted while we fa-la-la'd our way through the holiday season, all is back to as normal as life can ever be.

By now 99.9 percent of us have failed miserably at our feeble attempt to rectify our worst vices. One has to wonder why the New Year fills us with such false hope and motivation that we think all our imperfections will be wiped off the slate as easily as we rip the old calendar off the refrigerator and replace it with the new one. We are mortals and therefore we are bound to fail; if nothing else we hold the patent for dooming ourselves.

I, like the rest of the population vowed to quit drinking, smoking, swearing, and eating non-nutritional food. I pledged to get a decent night's sleep and wake up refreshed enough to walk 30 minutes every morning with our overweight yellow lab.

Of course, in all honesty I must say alcohol has rarely ever passed over my lips, and a nicotine craving has never occurred with in the realm of my DNA. As fate would have it though, on New Year's Day I broke one of my favorite dishes, rending my language resolution null and void, and I have managed to frequent fast food establishments quite regularly in the past two weeks thereby invalidating my attempt to clean up my culinary ways.

As for my endeavor to amend my sleeping habits, give me a break—I am the mother of small children. I don't take New Year's resolutions too seriously. If you have nobody but yourself to answer to, where is the motivating factor to keep you on the straight and narrow? On the other hand, we Catholics are faced with a New Year's resolution scenario every Lenten season in which we have to answer to the "Big Boy Upstairs"—talk about motivating factors.

For six weeks, starting on Ash Wednesday, it is a popular ritual in this practice to make a sacrifice of some sort. Then when Easter Sunday rolls around, we all get gussied up, go to church, contribute to the collection plate, feel good about ourselves, and then continue down our wayward path until the next year.

So why overdo this resolution stuff at the New Year when the thing during Lent holds more repercussions? Besides after thinking it over, I decided "why in God's name would I get up 30 minutes earlier to walk a dog I don't even like?"

And so goes another "Jingle from Pringle."

Running with the pack

Last year was an exceptional one for many of the area's top runners. Well, this Saturday evening at the Lodge at McDonald's in Oak Brook will be a chance to recognize them.

That's where hundreds of runners will kick back and have a good time at the annual CARA (Chicago Area Runners Association) will be holding its first event-only there will be no running involved.

The party will feature awards, dinner, music by a top local rock band, dancing, a raffle and a silent auction to support the CARA, which has more than 7,000 members and has been promoting running for better than 21 years.

"The Chicago area is enjoying a new boom in running and we're heading strong into the year 2000," said David Patt, chief executive officer of CARA.

"Participation is up at every level-from the largest crowds ever at the Chicago Marathon to more runners out every day just having fun and getting in shape."

CARA will honor several runners at the gala, including many from our area.

They include the likes of Libertyville's Craig Dean, who will be recognized as honorable mention Veteran Runner of The Year and Lake Zurich's Sam Romanoski, to be recognized in the 14-and-under age group as one of the 1999 CARA Circuit winners along with Dean (in the 50-54 age group).

Beth Onines, also of Lake Zurich, will be honored as one of the circuit winners in the 45-49 age group. Robin Doyle and Susan Fink, both of Mundelein, will be honored in the men's and women's divisions, respectively, in the Open D 1999 Clydesdale Weight Divisions.

And finally, the Fox River Trail Runners, competing in the green division, will be honored for their success on the 1999 CARA Club Circuit.

The event runs from 6-11 p.m. Saturday. Tickets are $45 per person, including dinner and entertainment. Groups may reserve a table of 10 for $400.

For tickets or further information, contact the CARA office at (312) 666-9836 or check out the website at www.CARARUNS.org.

And, The Great Lakes Adaptive Sports Program Association, in cooperation with the Creative Mobility Solution Specialists of St. Charles, Illinois will be hosting an Adaptive Bike Expo this Saturday from 12 noon-3:30 p.m. at the Great Lakes Naval Base Drill Hall 1400.

Adaptive bike experts will be available to provide information to parents as well as both recreational and competitive adult riders.

Participants will be able to test ride hand and foot powered cycles, adaptive trikes, tandems, and recumbent bikes.

Physical therapists and adaptive bike experts will be on-site to help evaluate the best bike for each person's individual needs.

All participants will receive a water bottle and commemorative t-shirt.

There is a $5 fee, which will benefit the Great Lakes Adaptive Sports Association, which provides recreational and competitive sports opportunities for youths and adults with primary physical or visual impairments. For further information, please contact Cindy Housner at (847) 249-8685.

Offense suspect as Sequoits enjoy roller-coaster ride

By JOHN PHELPS
Sports Editor

The offense was a little stagnant and could never really get on track last Friday as the Antioch varsity boys basketball team slipped to visiting Lake Forest, 49-39.

"We didn't execute very well," said head coach Jeff Dresser. "Our inside game was suspect and our offense as a whole was soft."

With the loss, the Sequoits fell to 8-7 overall and in a logjam at 3-2 in the North Suburban.

Antioch will look to get back on track Friday when it travels to Warren for a 7:30 p.m. NSC tilt.

"It will be a test to see how we respond," added Dresser. "The good thing is that in sports, when you have a bad game, you always have the next one to try and redeem yourself. It will be tough because we know Warren always plays good defense and they'll try and force it inside on the offensive."

Against Lake Forest, Antioch was patient in holding the ball but when the shots presented themselves, the nets weren't too kind.

The Sequoits shot a meager 13-for-40 from the field and committed 15 turnovers on the evening.

"We thought we had a chance to come back in the fourth quarter but they simply outthrustled us," noted Dresser. "They also followed and finished more of their shots while we were held to one shot on many occasions."

Antioch's last lead in the contest came after Eric White's bucket gave them a 20-19 advantage with 3:40 left in the first half.

White led everyone with a game-high 22 points, including three treys. But Lake Forest went on a 6-0 to close the half and lead at 25-20.

Junior Ari Brown's three-pointer to open the third quarter pulled the Sequoits to within 25-23 but they could get no closer. Brown, who had scored in double-figures six games in a row, was held to six.

"They (Lake Forest) seem to always do a good job on Don and they shut down Ari as well tonight," noted Dresser.

Lake Forest (9-4, 2-3) held a 4-8 point lead the rest of the way, going up by as many as 14 (44-31) with 1:50 remaining in the contest.

In between the sophomore and varsity games, Eric White, Adam Niles, and Conrad Adkins were recognized as Academic All-State in football for this past season.

Meanwhile, the offense was in gear though last Wednesday as the Sequoits downed host Round Lake, 54-36.

With that victory and before the Lake Forest loss, Antioch had won three straight.

Against the Panthers, Antioch broke it open early and often, racing to a 20-4 lead after the first quarter.

"We were a little suspect though in the second quarter," said Dresser. "But our defense rose to the occasion, especially late in the game."

Brown poured in 17 points, including nine in the first-quarter explosion. White added six of his 14 in the opening frame as well. Antioch was 9-of-13 from the field while Round Lake, on the other hand, was limited to 2-of-8 from the field.

The Panthers (4-10) clawed back into the game, thanks to Antioch's 0-for-10 field goal shooting in the second quarter. But the Sequoits still held a 21-10 halftime advantage.

Round Lake got as close as five at one point in the third after a three-pointer by Scott Mendralla but an 8-3 run by the Sequoits halted any further threats in maintaining a 10-point cushion (33-23) after three frames.

Lackey pumped in 14 points, including two treys in the fourth in preserving the lead.

AT&T Cable Services and The Star Channel will televise the game, which will be taped delayed and broadcast in the week following at 8 p.m., Tuesday, 8 p.m. Wednesday, and 10 a.m. Saturday.

Banged up Sequoits still taking numbers on the mat

By JOHN PHELPS
Sports Editor

Despite some nagging injuries to a few of the guys, the Antioch varsity wrestling team is still producing solid results.

Such was the case in last week's 31-26 victory over Lake Forest, an always-dangerous North Suburban foe.

"That was a great head-to-head match," said Sequoit head coach Ted Sieckowski. "We've really stepped up and have been winning the matches we need to win. The kids really wrestled admirably considering we're going through some injuries right now. But we've been winning the matches we've had to win."

Sieckowski is referring primarily to 215-pounder Jeff Giernoth, who has been plagued by sore shoulders and a pulled hamstring, mostly sustained from the football season.

"I know he's hurting at times but he just fights through it," added Sieckowski. "He still goes out and gives it 100 percent and will do anything to win the match and help the team. Some time off over the holidays seemed to help him a lot."

Giernoth, a senior, posted a victory over Lake Forest's Rick Daniels by way of disqualification when Daniels used an illegal move.

"When that happened, Jeff was up 4-1 and seemed like he was well on his way to pinning (Daniels)," noted Sieckowski.

With the victory, Giernoth improved his record to 13-5 on the year.

Senior Ryan Hlinak has been on fire at 135 pounds. That's because Hlinak, the Sequoits lone state qualifier from last year, pinned Brian Clarria 1:33 into the match, thus raising his record to 16-1 on the year.

"He's a very smart wrestler," said Sieckowski. "Ryan had the flu earlier in the season but has recovered nicely. We're expecting some big things out of him in the next month or so, as well as Giernoth and others."

Junior Pat Swanson is another wrestler who has been turning it on. Swanson pinned his Lake Forest opponent at the 2:53 mark of the first period and over the weekend at the Lincoln-Way triple dual went 3-0, as did Giernoth and Hlinak. Ryan Smart also picked up a 5-4 victory over Andrew Thomas and was 2-1 at Lincoln-Way.

Other winners from the Lake Forest match included Ryan Schuster (103 pounds); Tommy Hart (112); and Bill Damron (125).

The Sequoits defeated Shepard before losing to Bradley and Thornton.

Antioch hosts Fremd Thursday and Warren Friday at 6 p.m. before traveling to the Sandburg Quad on Saturday.

Wilmot holds 'Night of Champions' at Maravela's

The 1999 racing season at the Wilmot Speedway was brought to a close last Saturday night, January 8, as the annual Night of Champions Awards Banquet was held at Maravela's in Fox Lake. The banquet marked the end of the 48th season at the historic speedway as Wilmot crowned the last three champions of the millennium in fine fashion. Nearly 300 drivers, fans and family members attended the annual event which culminates the season racing events, cheering the champions while enjoying an excellent dinner by Maravela's with musical entertainment was provided by Big Fun Entertainment.

The final champions of the 1990's were crowned in the IMCA Hobby Stock, IMCA Modified, and the Star Trac 410 Sprints. In the IMCA Hobby Stocks, in its first year running at Wilmot, Lyle Bottlemy of Pell Lake, Wisconsin took home his first-ever championship. When the speedway announced it was bringing in the Hobby Stocks, Lyle converted his asphalt car to dirt and went out and won the title. In the IMCA Modifieds, Rob Olson of Lake Villa earned his second championship. In accepting his award, Rob set a record by thanking everyone from his crew chief to the fans who attend the races to the restroom-cleaning personnel. To say he was excited would be an understatement.

Turning to the Star Trac 410 Sprints, Antioch's Tommy Sexton claimed his first-ever Sprint car championship. The championship culminated an electrifying year for Tom that saw him jump out of the starting gate with three feature wins in the first four weeks of the season.

From there, Tom ran consistently the remainder of the year in securing his title.

Special awards went to Sprint Rookie of The Year, Brent Mason of Beach Park, and IMCA Modified Rookie of The Year to Dr. Ken Johnson, DDS, of Park Ridge (IL). The Kenosha News Wisconsin Driver of The Year was won for the second consecutive year by Ed Kaelber of Kenosha, while The Waukegan News-Sun Driver of The Year went to Jay Sachs of Waukegan, who also claimed that honor for the second straight year.

Both Driver of The Year Awards were very well deserved as each driver displayed outstanding sportsmanship, made nearly 100 total appearances at local schools, churches, parades, and civic events on behalf of the speedway and motorsports in general.

The final award of the evening was the First Annual Ray Toft Dedication to Motorsports Award. Speedway management established the award to honor the man who not only operated the Wilmot Speedway for nearly 40 years, but who also owned and operated the Lake Geneva Raceway for many years.

The award will be presented yearly to the individual who during the previous 12-month period best demonstrates dedication to motorsports in general and the speedway specifically.

The 1999 winner was Frank Moser of Antioch. Although not racing at all during the 1999 campaign, Frank, a sprint car owner-driver, continually volunteered to make appearances with his car. During the past year, Frank attended school events, church functions, activities at The Great Lakes Naval Training Center, parades as well as many other events.

Frank worked for many years as a volunteer two truck driver at the speedway and was nearly speechless upon accepting his award. But he composed himself sufficiently and thanked Ray Toft for all he did over the years in bringing the excitement of auto racing to the community.

Speedway management announced the Y2k opening day will be May 13, with an open practice session scheduled for May 6. The next event for the speedway will be at the Wisconsin Motorsports Show on January 29-30 at the Midwest Express Center in Milwaukee. For further information on the speedway, call the office at (847) 385-0500 or visit the official speedway website at www.wilmotspeedway.com.

Lady Sequoits basketball their own worst enemy

By JOHN PHELPS
Sports Editor

They might not have the victories to show for it but one thing for sure—the Antioch varsity girls basketball team definitely has the size, talent, and heart to compete with anybody.

"They're learning as they go," said head coach Dave Woods. "Unfortunately, we've lost a lot of close games. I think that's due in part to our inexperience."

Such was the case last week when the Sequoits played pretty good basketball for three quarters before eventually falling to visiting Round Lake, 37-28.

Antioch used their size advantage in staking to a 24-21 lead after three quarters.

But then the Sequoits went cold in the fourth quarter, shooting only 2-for-10 from the field while being outscored in the frame, 16-4.

"We definitely beat ourselves," added Woods. "We tried forcing it too much and turnovers killed us."

Antioch committed 18 turnovers for the game, including four in the deciding period.

But the inside game was working effectively through the first three quarters as Shelly Wolfgram scored eight points while Erica Brown netted a team-high 12, including seven in the second half.

"We're not a very fast team but we have good size and need to start going inside more," said Woods. "I was happy with our defense—we did a nice job on Malueg—we made her work for her points."

Antioch's final lead was 24-23 early in the fourth. Malueg, who led all scorers with 13, gave the Panthers the lead at 26-24 but a basket by Brown evened the contest at 26. From there, Round Lake went on a 9-1 run to close the game.

The Sequoits defense held Malueg in check for the most part and forced 15 Round Lake turnovers for the evening.

"But it's the little things that add up and they have been catching up with us," said Woods. "We didn't box out and take advantage of our size in the fourth quarter."

ACHS then played another close game Saturday only to come up on the short end of a 42-33 decision to visiting Lake Forest.

The Sequoits (4-15 overall) fought back from two 13-point deficits in the second and third quarters and drew to within 35-33 late in the fourth.

But the Scouts erased any further threats as it outscored the Sequoits 7-0 the rest of the way.

"It was a pretty evenly matched game," added Woods. "They (Lake Forest) are a scrappy team and just wanted it more than we did. We didn't come out and play with a sense of urgency from the start. We played very well in the fourth quarter."

Woods said turnovers hurt in the first half as Lake Forest staked to a 18-11 lead at intermission. Antioch committed 11 in the first period followed by 12 in the second.

Wolfgram led the hosts with eight points, including six in the fourth quarter when Antioch went on a 10-0 run to close the margin.

Antioch will try to get back on track when it travels to North Chicago next Tuesday for a 7 p.m. North Suburban contest.

The art of hand-spinning fiber is not lost to the members of the Lake Spinners, a group of spinning enthusiasts from around Lake County.

The group gets together once a month at the Warren-Newport Library, armed with wheels, wool and a goal—to have fun and create.

"Everyone thinks this is something old and gone," said the group's leader, Darryl Russell, of Gurnee.

"Spinning is actually the cornerstone of civilization," said Russell, who added one of the first uses of the wheel was a spindle-whirl.

"Every civilization spun fiber," she said.

The Lake Spinners have been in existence for about seven years, but most members have been spinning, knitting, weaving and quilting for years longer.

The art of spinning involves making yarn from animal fiber for a variety of items like hats, mittens, sweaters, socks, afghans, rugs, scarves and many other garments and accessories.

"The benefit of being part of a guild is access to supplies and materials," said Russell.

The group utilizes references for goods in the back of craft magazines, and have international and local suppliers.

They get their wool and other animal fibers from farmers in New Zealand, Australia, Wisconsin and Antioch—among others.

One member has her own herd of sheep and dairy goats.

Others find uses for their own pet's hair.

Russell owns an angora rabbit and is able to make a sweater and-a-half a year, she said.

"It's getting what you want," said Russell. "Doing it yourself is easier."

Buying fiber in stores can be more expensive and finding particular fibers can be difficult.

More exotic fibers, like musk ox, yak and camel, can be found through suppliers. Some suppliers offer fibers that are pre-washed and dyed, although many spinners prefer the do-it-yourself method.

Member Genevieve McCann, of Wadsworth, began as a knitter, having worked in textile arts in Chicago making high-end fashion knit sweaters.

"I'm a knitter, and with knitters, when you put your hands on yarn it follows you home," she said of her work.

Through her own company, Earth Dance Design Works, she makes and sells her yarn and other creations. She just began a series of "Spirit Dolls," that she hopes to sell on the Internet.

McCann is also working on a "Rites of Passage" coat to be displayed at the 2000 Fine Art of Fibers show at the Botanical Gardens in Chicago.

Many other members have also displayed their creations at the show, which is held every November by the Northshore Weaver's Guild.

McCann describes herself as a "fiber artist," with a passion for luxury fibers like silk blends.

"I only do one-of-a-kind pieces. Doing something twice bores the heck out of me," she added.

"For me, it's meditative," said McCann, who makes spinning a part of her daily life.

Spinning is not difficult to learn, said the members, but it does take patience, time and effort.

McCann said the art of spinning is "handed down in an oral tradition."

"You wind up learning about animal husbandry, breeds of sheep and even the characteristics of different countries that breed (the animals)," she said.

Some spinners, she said, are "very breed specific," and stick to one kind of fiber like merino wool.

"Some of us are generalists and look at a specific breed for a specific type of project," said McCann.

"If I'm weaving rugs or something that's got to be durable, I'm going to look at long-haired breeds," she explained.

"If I'm spinning for something really close to my body, I want something delicate. It could be silk."

Many members sell their goods to friends, relatives and the public at craft shows and over the Internet, while some prefer to spin and create for personal enjoyment.

"It's hard to part (with what you've made), when you put so much effort into it. It's emotional," said Ellen Bloomfield, of Lake Villa, who recently made a silk wedding shawl for her sister.

She began the project in June, and finished one day before the wedding in October. The shawl will certainly become a cherished family heirloom, as will the baby blanket she made for her sister.

Bloomfield said she became interested in hand-spinning after becoming dissatisfied with what stores had to offer.

"I started in college. I was a knitter," said Bloomfield.

"At that time (mid 1980s), yarn for a sweater would cost $50. Now, it's like $100."

"I thought, 'I could do this better and cheaper,'" she said.

"I discovered it's a whole different world," said Bloomfield, who admits she came to realize it was better to do it yourself, but not necessarily cheaper.

Carol Jenkins, of Long Grove, owns six sheep and dairy goats. She is also a professional dog groomer.

"I have a lot of fiber to play with," she said, remarking that goat fur is soft and makes great cashmere goods.

Jenkins has been a self-taught knitter since the age of 10 and began spinning in 1978.

SHEAR

"It got to the point where I couldn't afford the fibers I wanted to knit. Spinning was the best way to get access to them," she said.

As a dog groomer, she sometimes ends up selling customers back their own dog's fur in the form of items like hats, scarves and mittens.

"I never get bored. I always have something to do," said Jenkins, who also finds time to make soap.

For Gloria Smiley, of Bristol, Wis., she spins for the pure enjoyment of it, and no longer sells her creations.

"It's stress-relieving. It's therapy," she concluded.

Getting together for shared good times with other spinners is not the only appeal of the Lake Spinners. They make it a point to find worthwhile community service projects throughout the year.

Over Christmas, the group "adopted" a family and made them cold-weather apparel.

They frequently hold "sheep to shawl" contests and then raffie the finished product. The "sheep to shawl" project involves spinning wool on-site and making it into a shawl. McCann said the whole process, from start to finish, usually takes about three hours.

The Lake Spinners welcome new members, but do not teach. They can, however, refer those interested to teachers in the area.

The group meets the second Sunday of each month from 1:30-4 p.m. at the Warren-Newport Library. Walk-ins are welcome.

For more information, contact Darryl Russell at 249-0553, or e-mail her at darussell@aol.com

Russell and other members also sell items on the web site e-fiber-arts.com.

Because my computer is on the blink (the monitor, not Y2K), and because we are beginning to swing into a major presidential candidate campaign period, I thought you might enjoy a look back at a column written during the last presidential campaign:

Now that it looks like Bob Dole is going to clinch the Republican nomination after all, and considering he has the personal appeal of dried beef jerky, his party is going to need a new, exciting idea to stir up the voters. They need something with more pizzazz than the flat tax theory, which seems to have fallen... flat.

My suggestion is that they ought to look overseas and pay attention to what those wild and crazy French folks are up to when they're not kissing. To be more specific, what the French are doing over there is GAMBLING.

Not that we here in the United States are exactly strangers to gambling. In fact, with off-track betting, Indian Reservation casinos, riverboat gambling and a lottery for every day of the week, I figure it's only a matter of time before we can place bets at the doctor's office while we wait: "$50 says that man over there has gout!" "You're on!"

But, you know the French—they like to stay one step ahead of the crowd. So, instead of betting on horses or a royal flush, they are placing bets on...DEATH! Yes, you heard me right. Death.

It's quite simple, really. A

LIFE'S A BEAR

prospective buyer makes a down payment on a real estate property while the owner is alive. He pays periodic installment payments until the owner dies, at which time the property changes hands. The amounts are proportional to the owner's age—in other words, the less time that the seller is expected to live, the larger your payments.

Which means, it is basically a gamble with death. If the owner dies before he or she is statistically expected to, the buyer ends up paying far less than market value for the property. If the owner has the physical constitution of a giant tortoise and lives to be 100, the buyer has gambled and lost. He'll still receive the property, but only after paying a great deal more than what it was worth.

Intriguing, isn't it? And it's definitely a seller's market—you put your house up for sale while continuing to live there, collect the down payment and regular installments, and gain extra income (not to mention a little incentive to keep on living and beat the odds). And once you die, you won't care whether or not the buyer got your property for a song. After all, you lived quite nicely in the meantime off those payments. You can't lose.

Also, this would be a perfect way to get back at your adult children, most of whom may have been jockeying for inheritance position ever since you hit retirement age. Oh, sure you could leave the house to them, but why? Did anyone leave you a house? No! Let the little vultures get their own!

Just picture it...seniors becoming their own "death bookies." No more dragging your walker to the 7-11 for those lottery tickets. No more buying 50 copies of Reader's Digest just to win the sweepstakes.

And the Republicans could tout this as a way for seniors to make up the difference in Social Security and Medicare cuts. Reinforce their smaller government theory. More power to the elderly, and that sort of thing.

Senator Dole can even use this gambling idea as his theme, saying that he's "making his bid on the White House."

Anyway, it's just an idea. I thought it might make the race for President a little more interesting. Personally, I think Dole should pick some other property to bid on. I doubt that Clinton is going to bite the dust just yet.

$5 says he's got another four years left in him.

Deadline for Benjamin Weiss Hillel Scholarship January 15

The Hillels of Illinois currently is accepting applications from undergraduate and graduate students for the Benjamin Weiss Hillel Scholarship for an Israel Experience. Two scholarships of $2,000 each will be awarded.

The deadline for all applications is Jan. 15.

To be eligible, students must live in or go to school in the greater Chicago area, including Urbana-Champaign. The Weiss scholarship also is restricted to students who have never been to Israel or who have not visited Israel since beginning ninth grade. While students are free to select the Israel program of their choice, preference will be given to those planning to pursue a serious educational experience.

To apply, students must: A. submit an essay of 1,000 words or less which addresses the topic, What event in Jewish history has been a source of inspiration to you? B. include a brief personal bio detailing their prior and current involvement with the Jewish community at home and on campus, the selected program in Israel, and name, address, phone number, e-mail address, school name and address, and graduation year. All applications should be mailed to: The Hillels of Illinois, One S. Franklin Street, Chicago, IL 60606.

The Benjamin Weiss Scholarship for an Israel Experience has been established in loving memory of Benjamin Weiss, real estate developer and philanthropist, who loved the State of Israel and believed that young people could make a difference.

The Hillels of Illinois, a partner in serving our community, is supported by the Jewish United Fund/Jewish Federation of Metropolitan Chicago and Hillel: The Foundation for Jewish Campus Life. Hillel serves as the Jewish address on campuses throughout the United States and in countries abroad, providing year-round cultural, educational, spiritual, vocational, athletic, social and community service programs designed to engage Jewish young adults.

HOROSCOPE

Aries - March 21/April 20

Don't be overly aggressive when meeting a new business associate early in the week, Aries. He or she is somewhat reserved and may be overwhelmed by your outgoing nature. Tone it down a bit until he or she gets to know you better. The higher-ups will appreciate this effort. Gemini plays an important role.

Taurus - April 21/May 21

Don't be stubborn when a loved one offers you some advice, Taurus. This person has your best interest at heart and just wants to help you make the right decision. Listen to what he or she has to say. The person whom you've been seeing needs a shoulder to cry on. Be there for him or her.

Gemini - May 22/June 21

Try not to grow impatient with a close friend who can't make up his or her mind. Instead of criticizing this person, help him or her to see the pros and cons of the situation. Your effort will be appreciated. You meet an interesting person late in the week. Don't leave without getting a phone number.

Cancer - June 22/July 22

Keep your emotions in check when a loved one tells you some family news early in the week. This person needs you to be strong and to think logically. You can't do this if you're upset. So, try to control yourself. That special someone has a surprise for you. Enjoy! Scorpio plays a key role.

Leo - July 23/August 23

Keep your eyes and ears open at work this week, Leo. There is something going on, but no one is saying what it is. Try to find out. Others are counting on your "detective skills." You get an unexpected windfall on Thursday. Enjoy this, because you certainly deserve it. However, remember to set something aside for a rainy day.

Virgo - Aug 24/Sept 22

A friend of a friend asks to borrow money, Virgo. While you would like to help, don't. You know that this person isn't reliable. You have to look out for your own financial well-being. The person whom you've been seeing has an important question to ask you. Be honest with him or her.

Libra - Sept 23/Oct 23

You have to make an important personal decision this week, Libra. You can't put it off any longer. Just think about what you really want, and follow your heart. It will work out for you. A loved one takes you out for a night on the town on Saturday. Enjoy yourself!

Scorpio - Oct 24/Nov 22

A close friend reveals a secret to you. While you want to tell others about it, you can't. This person turns to you in confidence; you have to keep quiet. That special someone has a bad day and takes it out on you late in the week. Don't take it personally. Aquarius plays a key role.

Sagittarius - Nov 23/Dec 21

Think before you speak when it comes to an important business meeting this week, Sagittarius. There is a lot riding on this discussion. Don't ruin things by saying something thoughtless. The higher-ups are counting on you to handle this situation well. You meet an interesting person on Thursday. Get to know him or her better.

Capricorn - Dec 22/Jan 20

While you want to make a good impression with an influential acquaintance, don't be too aggressive. Just be yourself, and you're sure to win his or her approval. A loved one needs your advice about a personal problem. Be honest with him or her — even if what you have to say won't be appreciated.

Aquarius - Jan 21/Feb 18

You have a lot to do this week, Aquarius. The only way to get anything done is to get organized. Set your priorities, and work diligently. Don't let others distract you from the tasks at hand. A good friend fixes you up on a blind date. While you're dreading it, don't. It is sure to be fun.

Pisces - Feb 19/March 20

Don't let an acquaintance pull the wool over your eyes when it comes to a financial matter. He or she is trying to swindle you. Don't let that happen. The person whom you've been seeing has a surprise for you. Enjoy!

DANCE

Youth America Grand Prix

Organized by former Bolshoi Ballet dancers Larisa and Gennadi Saveliev, Youth America Grand Prix (YAGP) is the newest and the most exciting student ballet and contemporary dance competition of its kind happening in America. Youth America Grand Prix is the first in the U.S. to offer its participants $60,000 in scholarships to the top dance schools in the country, prestigious prizes and cash awards for teachers and students, as well as a chance to study with and be seen by the most respected leaders in the ballet and contemporary dance world. The competition will take place at Chicago's North Shore Center for the Performing Arts on Jan. 15-16, with a series of dance workshops conducted at the facilities of the renowned Joffrey Ballet and Ballet Chicago. For registration and additional information, call (201) 592-0584.

Learn how to create a time capsule at museum

Learn how to start your own time capsule at "Capture the Memories," Saturday, Jan. 22, from 1-4 p.m., at the Lake County Museum. Bring in your favorite photos, card collections, t-shirts, stuffed animals and other items that capture your special memories. Museum staff will show you how you can make your own time capsule. Record your memories in a special keep-sake booklet and discover how to properly preserve your souvenirs so they'll last through the next century.

"Capture the Memories" is open to all ages and is free with paid admission to the Museum: $2.50 for adults, $1 for ages four to 17. Ages three and under are free. Museum hours are 11 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.,

Monday - Saturday, and 1-4:30 p.m. on Sundays. Free admission for all ages offered year-round on Tuesdays. The Museum will be closed during February and March 2000 while all new exhibits are installed.

The Lake County Museum is located in Lakewood Forest Preserve on Route 176, Wauconda, just west of Fairfield Rd. between Libertyville and Barrington.

For more information on "Capture the Memories," call Mary Ellen Mason, Communications and Development Coordinator, at 526-4774, ext. 22.

SPOTLIGHT: Gurnee Holiday Inn

Location:
6161 W. Grand Ave. in Gurnee
Telephone:
(847) 336-6300

Hours:
Holiday Inn Gurnee welcomes guests 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Gurnee Grill is open from 6 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily and until 11 p.m. on weekends.
Facilities:
Gurnee Grill offers a Seafood Buffet on Friday; a Champagne Brunch on Sunday; steaks, chops and seafood.

Where the action is.

The joint is jumping, Gurnee that is, especially in the summertime with Six Flags Great America in full swing, and the shopping at Gurnee Mills is better than ever. All this just up the street and within walking distance of the Holiday Inn Gurnee at 6161 W. Grand Avenue.

Located for 30 years in what is now the heart of Lake County's action center, the Holiday Inn has just donned a whole new look with cool greens and blues enhancing the warm and inviting traditional cherry wood furnishings of the newly decorated rooms.

The halls, meeting rooms, restaurant and lounge have all had a face-lift too, making the Holiday Inn Gurnee an even more charming and elegant place to stay.

The hospitable and professional staff of 125, from the office personnel, to the desk clerks, and the chefs in the kitchen to the housekeeping, are all there to welcome you and make your visit a memorable one that will have you coming back for more.

The Holiday Inn Gurnee boasts 224 comfortable and attractive sleeping rooms, a ballroom that can service 275, and breakout meeting rooms that can handle from five to 40 people for business or pleasure.

Stop in the Gurnee Sports Bar for a drink and some socializing amid myriad sports paraphernalia. There's a giant TV and several others for viewing that important sporting event in style. Complimentary hors d'oeuvres are served Monday through Friday from 5 to 7 p.m.

If you're hungry, there's the Gurnee Grill. If you're not, you will be as soon as you take in the wide variety of delectable items on the menu from the Seafood Buffet on Friday to the Champagne Brunch every Sunday.

This is casual dining at its best with sizzling steaks, crisp pork chops and sumptuous seafood available at reasonable prices just waiting for your order. The Grill is open from 6 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily and until 11 p.m. on weekends for the convenience of guests and the public alike. For more information, or to make the first of many reservations to come, call (847) 336-6300.

'Magnolia': Sweet performances, wilting plot

As an actor's showcase, Magnolia is as sweet as they come, but even an A-list ensemble can't revive a wilting plot.

Named for a street in California's San Fernando Valley, Magnolia is a three-hour-long study of the chaotic, stressful, depressing, guilt-ridden, and sometimes drug-induced, stranger-than-fiction lives of a group of people who fall victim to that six degrees of separation theory responsible for Kevin Bacon's comeback.

The film begins with what is supposed to be strange-but-true episodes from the past, shot in black and white, like a metaphor for the gray areas that lurk in our everyday existence no matter how much planning we think we've

movie review

done to maintain order.

Example: A young man plans to commit suicide by jumping off a high-rise apartment building. Inside are his parents, fighting again and threatening each other with (unloaded) guns as they usually do. Unbeknownst to mom and pop is that their son, sick of their fake threats, loads the gun so they really will kill each other.

The plan goes awry when just as their son falls past their open window, mom accidentally fires the loaded gun and shoots him in the chest, technically killing him before he kills himself.

Mom is charged with murder. The son is named an accomplice in his own death. Lesson? Even the best laid plans aren't fool-proof.

Fast-forward to the present, and a dozen or so characters each with their own issues and personality flaws linking to another's.

Jim the incompetent cop falls hard for Claudia the coke-head after questioning her about a disturbance call for loud music.

Jimmy is an aging game show host who just found out he's dying of cancer and has two months to live. He begins to selfishly confess his secrets to his wife Rose, who never wanted to know in the first place.

Disenchanted whiz kid Stanley's overpowering father expects him to break the record on the quiz show.

Millionaire Earl Partridge (Jason Robards), is also dying of cancer and wants to find his son before he dies. His wife Linda (Julianne Moore), is torn up over his eminent death, as is his personal caretaker Phil.

Frank Mackey (Tom Cruise), is a sex seminar guru desperate to rid himself of his past, telling interviewers his dad is dead because he hates him so much.

Rounding out the motley crew is ex-quiz show kid now turned stupid grown-up, Donnie Smith (William H. Macy); his boss, owner of an electronics store; and a street-wise kid who raps the identification of a murderer to Jim the cop who just doesn't get it.

And I have a sneaking suspicion general audiences won't get it either.

All these plots and subplots are amusing and suspenseful at times, but after awhile there is so much entanglement you stop caring what the outcome will be and instead wish the movie were about two hours shorter.

I'm a fan of the "big payoff," especially when I'm enduring three hours worth of criss-crossing storylines, twists and turns.

I expect a grand finale that explains everything (that I knew all along of course) and makes me feel like I've been let in on a secret. Two excellent examples are The Sixth Sense and Fight Club, which are both on my best list for 1999.

I didn't discover the secret to Magnolia, unless you count the fact that everyone is messed-up, which wasn't a difficult point to realize to begin with.

To be fair, Magnolia has some of the finest acting I've seen in a while.

Cruise is magnificent as a self-important, macho seminar instructor whose motto is "seduce and destroy." Robards actually looks like he's going to drop dead for real. Can we get a follow-up on his condition please?

Moore's depiction of a crazed, near suicidal wife is so convincing I think we'll check on her too. Macy, as the aged whiz kid, is a breath of fresh, freakish air.

But, like I said, it's more of a showcase of each actor's individual abilities and unfortunately, good acting alone cannot carry a story that I think is more tangled than intended.

Then again, there's that whole best laid plans theory. Maybe it got the best of ME!

For the performances, I give Magnolia four and a half popcorn boxes out of five. Overall, I give it just two and a half.

A streetwise kid gives "Jim" the cop a rap on who committed a murder in Magnolia.

Sixth annual Bruce A. Schurman Scholarship applications available

As the Bruce A. Schurman Scholarship Fund enters its' sixth year, applications are now available for students with permanent physical disabilities who are pursuing post-high school educational programs. Multiple scholarships in amounts up to $5,000 will be awarded by the Fund. This Scholarship Fund was initiated to recognize Marianjoy RehabLink's past president Bruce A. Schurman, who for twenty years, provided dedicated leadership in providing services for the physically disabled.

The Scholarship Fund was established to further Marianjoy's commitment to assist in rebuilding the lifestyles of people with physical disabilities, and more specifically, those disabilities with diagnoses treated through Marianjoy's diagnostic programs. These programs include: brain injury, spinal cord injury, stroke, musculoskeletal impairments such as amputation or multiple trauma and neuromuscular disorders like Multiple Sclerosis, Cerebral Palsy and Guillain Barre' Syndrome.

Fully completed applications and other required documents must be received at Marianjoy by 4:30 p.m. on Monday, April 10. Students of area high schools can check with their counselor for an application. For more information or to receive an application by mail, call Marianjoy at (630) 462-4445.

Marianjoy Hospital & Clinics has the distinction of being one of the nations premiere institutions serving people with physical disabilities. Marianjoy is a division of Marianjoy RehabLink, an expanding network of rehabilitation services with treatment programs throughout Chicago and Northern Illinois. Since 1972,

Disney on Ice celebrates 75 years of Disney Magic

A show 75 years in the making, "Disney on Ice — 75 years of Disney Magic" brings Mickey, Minnie, Pinocchio, Buzz Lightyear, Woody and the newest Disney favorites from "Mulan," "A Bug's Life" and "The Lion King" will be taking to the ice at Rosemont's Allstate Arena, January 26-30 and at Chicago's United Center, February 1-13, for a celebration in grand Disney tradition. Featuring a sing-along score of Disney music favorites, cutting-edge choreography and elaborate, eye-dazzling sets and costumes, "Disney on Ice — 75 years of Disney Magic" is the ultimate ice show for Disney fans of all ages.

As the mouse that started it all, Mickey hosts the extravagant celebration of breathtaking pair skating, moving solos and tremendous production numbers by Emmy Award winning choreographer Sarah Kawahara. Complementing Kawahara's skate sequences are the memorable tunes by music directors Art Kempel and Stan Beards that bring the memories of Disney to life on ice. Scenic designer David Potts and lighting designer Roy Bennett create the fantasyland illusion that showcases 75 years of Disney's memorable moments from television's "The Mickey Mouse Club" to blockbuster films including "Toy Story."

Clothing designer Bob Mackie, who has outfitted numerous celebrities including Cher, dresses his most unique client to date as Minnie Mouse dons an original Bob Mackie gown of red sequins with signature "Minnie" bow.

Tickets for "Disney on Ice — 75 years of Disney Magic" will be available at Rosemont's Allstate Arena box office, 6920 N. Mannheim Rd., The United Center box office, 1901 W. Madison St., all Ticketmaster locations and on the web at www.ticketmaster.com. To order tickets by phone, call (312) 559-1212. Prices are $9.75, $17.75 and $22.75 with a limited number of $45 V.I.P. rinkside seats available. Groups, call 671-9800 for Allstate Arena tickets or (312) 455-7469 for United Center tickets. For general show information, call the Allstate Arena at 635-6601 or the United Center at (312) 455-4500. To learn more about "Disney on Ice" log onto www.DisneyOnIce.com.

Mickey and Minnie welcome one and all to "Disney on Ice celebrates 75 years of Disney Magic," coming to Rosemont's Allstate Arena, January 26-30 and Chicago's United Center, February 1-13.

Attorney to address King Festival

Civil-rights attorney Thomas N. Todd, who was the first full-time black professor at Northwestern University's School of Law (1970-74), will headline the 10th annual Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., national Holiday Gospel Festival at Illinois Wesleyan University next month.

Todd will deliver the festival's keynote address on Saturday, Jan. 15, at 5 p.m. in the Main Lounge of IWU's Memorial Student Center, 104 E. University Ave., Bloomington.

Tickets for Todd's address and the annual fellowship dinner that will follow his presentation are $10 for adults, $8.50 for students and $4 for children under age 12. Tickets may be purchased at the Main Desk, IWU Memorial Student Center or by calling Corine Sims at 309-828-4602.

IWU will cap the National Holiday marking the birth of slain civil-rights leader and Nobel Peace Prize Laureate Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., with a seven-hour gospel festival, beginning at 2 p.m. on Monday, Jan. 17, in Westbrook Auditorium, Presser Hall (IWU's School of Music), 303 E. University Ave., Bloomington.

Jack Porter, who came to Bloomington from Chicago in 1963 as pastor of the Western Ave. Presbyterian Church, will address the Jan. 17 gospel festival around 3 p.m. Bloomington honored Porter in 1994 with the Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., Human Relations Award.

The gospel festival is open to the public, free of charge.

UW-Parkside to host national print show Jan. 16 to Feb. 24

Works by some of the nation's best printmakers, including several by area artists, will be on display when the University of Wisconsin-Parkside hosts the Parkside national Small Print Exhibition. The exhibition opens Jan. 16 in the University's Communication Arts Gallery and continues through Feb. 24. A reception will be held Jan. 16 from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. Reception admission is free. A total of 116 pieces from 99 artists were selected for the exhibition. More than 750 pieces were submitted by artists from 47 states. The merits of each piece were determined by independent juror Beauvais Lyons, a professor of Art at the University of Tennessee, Knoxville. Professor Lyons made his selections during a visit to UW-Parkside in Nov.

Exhibition Director and UW-Parkside Art Professor Doug DeVin-

ny said the quality of the work submitted and selected for this year's show is stronger than in recent years. This is the 13th year of the exhibition. DeVinny said several UW-Parkside alumni and a number of artists from Wisc. earned places in this year's exhibit, adding that original prints by a number of nationally known artists also will be displayed.

To be considered for the Parkside National Small Print Exhibition, artwork must be original prints completed in the last two years. In addition, the print or its mat could not exceed 18 inches in any dimension. Copies of the exhibited prints may be available as part of limited editions. More information on obtaining prints will be available at the gallery.

The Parkside National Small Print Exhibition is free and open to the public.

Taking the outdoors into the millennium

Anglers, hunters armed with technology, fish, game don't stand a chance

With the state-of-the-art products available to hunters and anglers, it doesn't seem quite fair that fish and game still rely only on their natural instincts! The newest hunting and fishing products will be on display at the Chicagoland Fishing, Hunting, Travel & Outdoors Show, taking place at the Rosemont Convention Center from Saturday, Jan. 22, through Sunday, Jan. 30.

"Most of us learned to fish, hunt and enjoy the outdoors using little or no technology," says Chauncey Niziol, outdoor radio and television personality and founder of the Illinois Outdoor News Network. "With the merger of technology and the outdoors, the millennium sportsman can't afford not to use the high tech equipment available today."

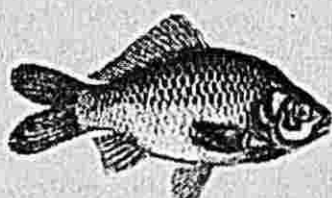

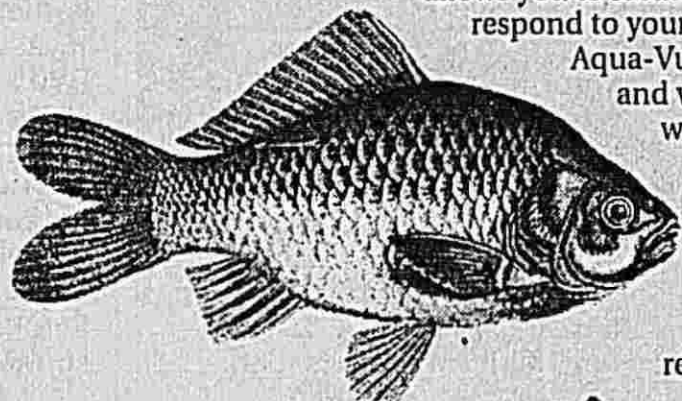

Following are examples of the technological products available for the millennium:

GPS (Global Positioning System)

This hand-held receiver communicates with 24 satellites that circle the globe. No matter where you are on the earth—in the middle of a field, jungle, lake or ocean—simply turn on the GPS receiver and determine your latitudinal and longitudinal location within a few yards! If you want to be able to find this place again—your deer stand or a great fishing hole—simply push a button and the GPS receiver will remember the spot until you choose to delete it.

Aqua-Vu Underwater Viewing System

Why guess where the fish are when you can look for yourself? This 23-pound portable viewing system allows you to locate fish and even watch them respond to your bait! Non fisherman can use the Aqua-Vu system for underwater viewing and videotaping, exploring shipwrecks or even search-and-rescue missions.

Shimano Fishing

See the latest in baitcasting reels, spinning reels, saltwater reels, rods and accessories from Shimano Fishing. Promoting the theme "Metal Makes Us Stronger," Shimano will introduce its newest line of reels featuring aluminum frames. For the last few decades, Shimano's top-of-the-line reels have featured graphite frames, which are lighter but not as durable as aluminum frames. By making the aluminum frames.

Show hours are Saturday, Jan. 22, from 10 a.m.-8:30 p.m.; Sunday, Jan. 23, from 10 a.m.-6 p.m.; Monday-Tuesday, Jan. 24-25, 1-9 p.m.; Wednesday-Friday, Jan. 26-28, from 1-9:30 p.m.; Saturday, January 29, from 10 a.m.-8:30 p.m.; and Sunday, Jan. 30, from 10 a.m.-4 p.m. Admission is $7 for adults; $6 for seniors; $3 for children 6-12; and free for children under 6. Adult two-day passes are $11 and adult three-day passes are $15. The box office closes one hour prior to show closing.

For more information on the Chicagoland Fishing, Hunting, Travel & Outdoors Show, call 1-800-511-8376 or see www.sport.reedexpo.com.

Laugh at winter...escape to 'Trees' for snow month classes

Snowshoe making, cross country skiing, quilting and fly tying are some of the highlights of the winter schedule at Trees For Tomorrow, the resources specialty school in Eagle River, WI.

"I think Mother Nature's saving up some dandy snowstorms for us and when they hit you you'll be glad you made a pair of snowshoes at Trees For Tomorrow," said workshop reservations director Carol Olson. Weekend snowshoe building sessions are set for January 14-16 and February 4-6.

"Beginning snowshoes weavers who sign up for our workshops can choose from three different styles, each made of white ash and webbing that gets varnished to an golden amber befitting an heirloom work of art," Olson said.

Family cross country ski weekends are set for January 28-30 and February 18-20, according to Olson. These retreats include five home-cooked meals, two nights lodging, skiing on hundreds of kilometers of groomed trails and naturalist programs on northwoods ecology all for $95 per adult, double occupancy and lower rates for kids. Ski equipment is available for rent.

A Women's Cross Country Ski Clinic is also set for February 18-20 featuring tips and instruction by Elite Birkebeiner skier Sandy Lotto.

A weekend seminar for beginning fly fishing tyers is on tap for January 29-30 and quilting retreats are offered on February 11-13 and March 17-19, Olson added. "All of these courses and more are described in our 2000 course catalog which is available free by calling 800-838-9472."

Aromatherapy Workshop at Waukegan Park District

Bowen Heritage Cr. is offering you an opportunity to pamper yourself now that the holidays are behind you. Kris Wrede of Natural Scents in Chicago returns to the Circle to start out the new year. Register soon and sign up with a friend for this Saturday class. This three-hour class will meet at the Waukegan Park District's Lilac Cottage, 1911 N. Sheridan Rd., Waukegan on Jan. 22 beginning at 1 p.m. At the end of this class you will have customized your own personal skin care product. Wrede will touch on aromatherapy basics—the power of essential oils to your particular skin type, the benefits of aromatic skin care and how to incorporate it into your current program plus the benefits of aromatic skin care and scalp massage.

The fee for this workshop is $50 for residents of the Waukegan Park District and $55 for non-residents. To register for this class and all Bowen Heritage Circle programs, please call 360-4740 or stop by Jack Benny Center for the Arts located at north entrance of Bowen Park at 39 Jack Benny Dr., Waukegan.

Ice Carving Competition will feature 30 professional carvers

Thirty professional ice carvers will compete in the 2nd annual "Festival of Ice" on Saturday, Jan. 29 in historic St. Charles, MO.

Thirty carvers from the top hotels in the Midwest will be competing for a $5,000 total purse in the festival, which will take place from 9 a.m. - 6 p.m. along five blocks on Main St. The event will also feature wood-burning stoves in each block, hot beverages sold by local vendors and Fete de Glace apparel for sale.

The competition comprises three events: 15 two person teams carving large sculptures from five of the 300-lb. ice blocks put together, 30 professional single block competitors, and up to 30 amateur single-block competitors.

Saint Charles, MO is located on I-70, 10 minutes from St. Louis Lambert International Airport and 30 minutes from downtown St. Louis. St. Charles hosts an array of accommodations, from bed and breakfasts to quality hotels. The Main Street Historic District and Frenchtown Historic District are full of shopping and dining establishments while nearby wineries and wildlife refuges offer visitors the chance to enjoy outstanding vistas and award winning wines. ## Introduction to Windows 95 seminars offered at ECC in Jan.

An Introduction to Windows 95 seminar is available at Elgin Community College this January. Sponsored by ECC's Center for Personal and Professional Development, this seminar and other Microsoft Office Training seminars each consist of two, four-hour sessions. They are geared to individuals who need updating and/or advancement in their computer skills in a workplace environment. All seminars are held in the ECC Business conference Center, 1700 Spartan Drive, Elgin.

Introduction to Windows 95 acquaints the student with the powerful and useful applications of this program. Students will learn to be more productive by learning how to navigate a desktop, customize the taskbar and manage computer files and documents. This basic skills seminar is geared to those who want to have a better understanding of the Windows 95 operating system and organizational abilities.

Weave like a pro... then go in the snow

Northern Wisconsin's snowshoe weaving headquarters, Trees For Tomorrow, this week announced the winter schedule of snowshoe building workshops for 1999-2000.

"We'll have three snowshoe weaving weekends and one snowshoe furniture building weekend this winter," said instructor Robin Indermuehle. "The sessions start on Friday evening and end just after noon on Sunday."

The dates are January 14-16, February 4-6 and March 17-19. Indermuehle said snowshoe makers can choose from three designs, the Alaskan, the Ojibwa and the Bearpaw.

"We've never had a participant, even school students, who couldn't master most of the basic knots and snowshoe weaving patterns after just one weekend of practice," Indermuehle commented. "Trees For Tomorrow's snowshoe building classes are known for a high level of personalized instruction, guaranteeing that everyone who attends will head home with a beautiful pair of snowshoes handwoven to heirloom standards."

The cost of the snowshoe weaving workshops is $199 including all meals, lodging, materials and instruction. The snowshoe furniture building fee is $249. Commuter rates are available for all classes.

Call 800-838-9472 to register or for more information. Visit the "Trees" website at www.treesfortomorrow.com.

Jazz legend Herbie Mann brings rhythmic harmony to Norris Theatre

Saturday, Jan. 22, at the Norris Theatre in St. Charles, jazz flutist extraordinaire Herbie Mann and his group Sona Terra will be joined by the Illinois Chamber Symphony for an evening of smooth jazz matched with symphonic accompaniment.

For over four decades Herbie Mann has brought his two loves, music and diverse cultures, together on stages around the world to create one original and extraordinary sound. He is credited as being one of the seminal jazz flutists, as well as being one of the first purveyors of world music.

In the late 50's, after years as a journey man jazz musician in New York, Mann decided to stray from his tenor saxophone roots in search of a sound that would set him apart from other tenor players of his generation. It was in 1958 that he found his voice in flute.

From that point on, the sound he established with his bands became characterized by spare, open arrangements, lots of rhythm and the sweet sound of the flute floating on top.

Herbie Mann's most recent release is "Opelescence" and it features the band's current touring line-up. Along with the leader's flutes, Mark Soskin is heard on keyboards, Paul Socolow plays bass, Romero Lubambo is on guitar, Ricky Sebastian is on drums and Cyro Baptista is featured on percussion. Mann's Norris Theatre show promises to bring the irresistible rhythms and melodies that have remained the foundation of his music. When you add in the talent of local guest, the Illinois Chamber Symphony, you get a combination of well known talent that shouldn't be missed!

Tickets are now available for the 7:30 p.m. performance. Adults are $35.50 per ticket; Seniors and Children 12 and under are $34.50 per ticket.

The Norris Theatre is located at 1040 Dunham Rd. in St. Charles. For more information on this or any other Norris performance contact the box office at 630-584-7200 or visit our web site at www.norristheatre.com. Free parking is available, please call for directions.

Forest preserve adds farm to repertoire

403-acre purchase latest by board

By KELLY C. DUCKWORTH
Correspondent

At the December 17 Lake County Forest Preserve Board of Commissioners meeting, the board approved creating a new 403-acre forest preserve in western Lake County and also adding 28 acres to Lakewood Forest Preserve near Wauconda.

These latest purchases were made using funds from the voter-approved forest preserve referendum in April 1999.

Ray Lake Farms, a 403-acre former cattle farm, was purchased as the newest forest preserve for $7.1 million. The property is bounded by Erhart, Gilmer and Fremont Center Roads in Fremont Township.

Multiversity site hits yet another snag

By SANDY HARTOGH
Staff Reporter

The proposed Lake County university center has yet another delay to contend with. This latest glitch in the controversial issue of where the center should be located may push the facility's opening date to 2002. The original projected completion date was fall of 2001.

In August of last year, the Illinois Board of Higher Education (IBHE) postponed its decision on a site selection, despite the support of a board-appointed committee to locate the center at the College of Lake County in Grayslake.

According to IBHE Communications Officer Don Sevens, this delay was in deference to the Lake County Board's request to give developer Martin Tuohy the opportunity to demonstrate that the Lakehurst Mall site proposal would be financially viable.

Sevens said Tuohy failed to provide some documentation, due on Jan. 1, that would give the IBHE assurances that the Lakehurst project will be a financial success.

"If the university center is located at Lakehurst, our concern is that it might be the only building there with its lights on," commented Sevens.

Sevens went on to say the board felt comfortable that four months was an adequate amount of time for Tuohy to answer some of the questions it put forth in regard to the financial feasibility of having the center be the anchor of Tuohy's redevelopment plan for the mall.

"We've accommodated the wishes of the County Board which is our partner in this endeavor," emphasized Sevens. "We are trying to be sensitive to the county's wishes and the economic development of Lake County."

Hula for health offers unique exercise form

By DENISE SCHAUFEL
Correspondent

Grab your grass skirt and sway your hips to Elvis' "Blue Hawaii." Lake Villa resident, Holly Nagel, member of the Aloha Dancers, will be teaching a unique way to exercise using the hula and other Polynesian movements at the Round Lake Area Park District participants will learn a traditional and graceful dance, while working off some pounds.

"It's easy to do, says Nagel, easy on the body and joints. You can be in any shape or any size to do this. It's a graceful dance, yet, you can really go places once you learn to move your bottom half."

Nagel started Polynesian style dancing while in college. A fellow worker, at the school newspaper, was performing fire knife dancing and invited her to try Polynesian dancing. That was 14 years ago. Since then, she joined the "Aloha Dancers" and has performed at the Chicago Cultural Center, Daley Plaza, and several riverboat casinos, along with many other special events. She estimates there are about 12 other dance groups in the Chicagoland area.

"It's a lot of fun, says Nagel, I've enjoyed learning about the different Polynesian cultures. In addition to the hula, I do Tahitian dancing, Maori (New Zealand) dancing and Samoan dancing."

Nagel will be teaching the basic steps including the hip sway, vamp, ami, and kalakaua. Style taught will be the ancient form of kahiko and the more modern awana, which uses pop music to dance by.

Another style to be looked at is the hapa haole, where the old style was influenced by white explorers when Captain James Cook discovered Hawaii, explained Nagel. This style was very popular in the 30s and 40s, when many of the big movies used this type of Polynesian dancing.

"Hula for Health" will be held at the Round Lake Area Park District, starting Jan. 20 from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. Openings are still available, call 546-8558 for more information.

Single-engine plane makes emergency landing

A new, single-engine Cirrus plane carrying two people, made an unconfirmed emergency landing in unincorporated Lake County on the afternoon of Jan. 8.

The plane landed east of Fairfield Rd. and south of Monaville Rd. in a farmer's field near Round Lake Heights, said Round Lake Heights Police Chief Don Johnson.

An anonymous source said the new model plane was equipped with a ballistic recovery shoot (parachute) for emergencies, but did not have to be used.

According to the source, the plane was coming from Palwaukee Airport in Wheeling when it experienced engine failure.

Johnson said although the Round Lake Heights Police Department was not handling the case, he had heard there were no injuries and "very little, if any, damage to the plane," which he remarked was from a rental company.

FARM

dress of Grayslake, was purchased in 1958 by the former Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. Ray. Until the 70's the farm was the grounds for a black angus breeding operation.

After Mr. Ray's death in the 60's his wife, two sons and daughter continued to maintain and live on the property until the 70's when they sold the cattle.

The Ray's continued to farm the land and lease it out to area farmers. Raine Ray, the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. Ray, continues to live on the property. One brother lives in state and the other lives out of state.

"We are selling the property because we want to see the property remain as it is instead of being sold to developers and see houses built on it," Raine said on behalf of herself and her brothers.

Ray Lake Farm marks the second major land buy since the purchase of the 539-acre Singing Hills Farm near Wauconda and Volo in 1997. Ray Lake Farms also marks the single largest expenditure of funds from the April 99 referendum.

"The new Forest Preserve offers a possible route for our planned 35-mile Millennium Trail/ The Wolff property preserves wetlands and woodlands offering habitat for a variety of wildlife, and could provide a critical connection to neighboring Forest Preserves," Carol Calabrese, president of Lake County Forest Preserves, said.

Ray Lake Farms features three wetlands totaling 120 acres, 80 acres of woodlands with predominantly bur oak, hickory, and cherry trees.

The Millennium Trail is a major project of the forest preserve that is currently still in the works, according to Andy Kimmel, Director of Environmental Education and Public Affairs.

"We hope to have that done in the next few years," he said.

The trail will loop westward from Mundelein to Lakewood north to Singing Hills, loop back to Rollins Savana, near Grayslake, and then go to McDonald Wood Forest, near Lindenhurst, east back to the Des Plaines River.

When the project is done it will connect with the 33-mile Des Plaines River Trail, the McClory Trail and the North Shore Trail, totaling over 100 miles of trails throughout Lake Co.

"Voters approved both funds in 1993 and 1999 to buy more land and build trails," Kimmel said.

The trails have multipurpose use, everything from hiking, running, biking and cross-country skiing can be done.

As for now, the finishing works for the purchase of the Ray Lake Farm property are being taken care of.

"We won't own it until March when the closing is scheduled. We are doing land survey currently," Tom Hahn, Director of Land Preservation and Special Projects, said.

Hahn suspects that a restoration of the wetlands will be done as well as forming prairies and clearing out forests.

"These are things that need to be done but there will be a planning process and what the best use of the land for the county is will be decided," he said.

stressed that "to do so prematurely would jeopardize the very thing they are asking for." He intends to talk with board members on Jan. 14 to further discuss the delay.

"Hopefully, we have shown good faith in presenting this project," said Tuohy, who feels the delay could have an effect on the final outcome of the decision.

Sevener agreed, claiming that a continued delay could have some effect on the economics and timely construction of the project. He said the board anticipates that it can receive a site selection proposal from the site recommendation committee by April, provided documentation is received from Tuohy by the end of January.

Tuohy noted that if the board selects the Lakehurst site, the university center could be up and running as soon as September 2000.

"We are channeling the demand for new construction into an existing infrastructure that lends itself to institutional use," said Tuohy. "We are offering the county an alternative to the suburban gridlock that is affecting our natural resources."

A DIGEST OF STORIES MAKING HEADLINES THROUGHOUT OUR REGION

Minor pleads innocent

Gurnee—The 15-year-old defendant in an aggravated battery case that stemmed from a hit at a Nov. 3 hockey game at the Rinkside Sports Arena plead innocent to the charge at a hearing on Jan. 5.

At the game between Glenbrook North and New Trier, the defendant allegedly cross-checked Neal Goss near or after the final buzzer. The hit sent Goss head-first into the boards, paralyzing him from the chest down.

Jeff Steinback, a lawyer for the defendant, said his client is distraught over the incident and "emotionally overwhelmed" by the media coverage of the trial.

The court case will resume on Jan. 26 with a pretrial.

Two arrested in veterinary burglaries

Lake Villa—Two men were arrested Sunday, Jan. 9, in a possible connection to a string of veterinary clinic break-ins that have occurred since late November.

Joseph E. Paulley, 18, and Glenn H. Roberts, 20, were both arrested after Lake Villa police officers found Paulley walking around the Lake Villa Animal Care Center at 8:45 p.m.

After stopping Paulley, officers found he was in possession of a flash light and a shopping bag, both items known to be in connection with possible burglaries, according to the police report.

Paulley later told officers that Roberts was waiting for him in the parking lot of McDonald's. Officers confronted Roberts and found cannabis and alcohol in his possession after a consented search of his vehicle.

According to the police report, Roberts eventually admitted that he was waiting in the McDonald's parking lot while Paulley robbed the veterinary clinic for "K" or "Special K", street names for ketamine hydrochloride and ketaset, both used primarily as a cat anesthetic.

The arrests may bring an end to a number of veterinary clinic burglaries in which animal hospitals in Grayslake, Knollwood, Mundelein, Gurnee, Round Lake, Lake Zurich and Beach Park were all hit.

Police drill at high school

Round Lake—A dangerous suspect scenario in the school setting was conducted at Round Lake High School on Jan. 6.

The covert operation was to see how the students and staff would react if an armed or dangerous intruder gained access to the building and was planned by the Round Lake Police Department.

The operation began at 9:30 a.m. and the school went into "lock down." By 9:47 a.m., the entire school was secured.

Police officers in full uniform and armed with unloaded machine guns, covered the inside of the building and the school's perimeter, making sure all doors were secured.

The drill was the first of its kind for the high school, but more will follow.

Library construction still planned

Round Lake—During the first advisory committee meeting in Springfield last month, the Round Lake Area Library was not recommended for the $250,000 state construction grant they were seeking.

The library plans to go ahead with their renovation project. Funds for construction sans a state grant will come from the sale of building bonds.

The lower and upper level of the library will be for renovated new services, materials and programs.

The library will be open during construction, to begin sometime in March.

A rummage sale of furniture and other items will be held Jan. 28 from 1-5 p.m. and Jan. 29 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Fire department to purchase camera

Mundelein—The Mundelein Fire Department will accept bids for two Thermal Imaging Cameras (TIC) starting in February.

Back home after "Back Roads"

The hand-held devices "see" heat, allowing firefighters to see clearly in an otherwise smoke-filled room.

"It's a technology that will allow our department to do a job more quickly and efficiently," said fire chief Randy Justus.

The cameras do not run cheap, costing up to $25,000. The department will take bids starting Feb. 10, and hopefully have the cameras in operation by March.

Baseball program asked to explain trail

Grayslake—A standing room only crowd turned out at the last Park District meeting, to hear the discussion about the spending habits of the Grayslake Baseball Association, which have recently been called into question by Park District Commissioner Ross Goodrich.

Since the Baseball Association has a Park District check-book, at previous meetings Goodrich had questioned why a private organization had been given access to public funds. All the funds used by the Baseball Association had been raised by the group, and are only held in a Park District account for convenience.

Founder Dave Peregrin said that their current financial set up was recommended by former Park District Executive Director, John Wilson.

Goodrich said that he appreciated the program, but that he had concerns that a private organization has access to public funds.

"Con artists can sniff this kind of thing out," Goodrich said. "Someone has to close the door on this. The seven commissioners are responsible for money and accounts of this Park District."

Village, patrolmen at odds over contract

Fox Lake—The Village of Fox Lake and the union that represents its patrol officers are in a court struggle regarding contract negotiations.

The 16 patrolmen are represented by the Fraternal Order of Police (FOP) bargaining unit. That unit has responded to a Village-filed Lake County Circuit Court lawsuit seeking to overturn an arbitrator's ruling.

"Two different times, the arbitrator has ruled in favor of the union. The village has a right to reject one decision. To file suit in circuit court is very unusual. Since 1986, it has only been done a dozen times. It is extremely costly, because now, if the village loses, it has to pay its lawyer fees and the unions' and is up for a 12 percent interest penalty," Illinois Fraternal Order of Police general council Thomas Sonneborn said.

Negotiations have taken place for more than 18 months. The patrolmen's salaries have been frozen since.

In its proposal for a three-year salary increase, the police-men compared salaries to Wauconda, Antioch, Round Lake Beach, city of McHenry, Cary and Grayslake. Policemen close to the negotiations say the salary is less than the average for the other towns mentioned.

Proposed sports complex on table

Libertyville—The Parks and Recreation Department Master Plan that was adopted on April 27, 1999 includes an outline for a joint sports complex venue.

The first part of the sports complex will feature a two-story entertainment center that includes 114,000 square feet of space for a variety of sports. It would also house the parks and recreation running pre-school, a full-service restaurant, a 30-foot climbing wall, an indoor walking area, fitness room, sporting goods store and parks and recreation department site offices.

The second part of the complex entails the proposal of a golf learning center and family fun center. It would highlight a driving range with grass, mat and automated tee areas, golf teaching areas, pro shop, concessions stand, miniature golf, batting cages, and party, vending and video game rooms.

There has been discussion of the complex being built near Route 45 and Peterson Road, but a specific location has not been determined yet.

The proposed sports complex is on the Village Board's Jan. 25 agenda. The board will vote on whether or not to move this proposal forward.

School considers raising fees

Wauconda—Athletic and some other fees are on the rise in Wauconda District 118.

The school board discussed how much to increase fees charged for interscholastic and intramural sports participation and parking. The new fee plan could be considered at the Jan. 20 board meeting.

"The fees have not been increased since the late 1980s. They would be increased gradually. It remains to be seen if there will be any impact on participation—we expect it to be minimal," Dr. John Barbini, superintendent, said.

Under a compromise plan, the fee for athletics for grades six to eight would be raised from $15 to $10; the athletic fee for high school, $30 from $20 and the intramural fee would stay at $10 a week.

Flood fighters score best year

Chronically underfunded and often maligned politically, the Lake County Stormwater Management Commission (SMC) completed its most successful year in 1999 and is poised for even greater accomplishment this year.

Gurnee Mayor Richard Welton, chairman of the agency serving all 52 municipalities and all 18 townships of a county exceeding 600,000 in population, described the 12 months just past as a "watershed year." Indeed, the commission charged with the responsibility of keeping Lake County "high and dry" and enforcing the Watershed Development Ordinance, came into its own after years of struggle and dealing with obstruction and interference.

In a locale with four major watersheds and 26 sub-watersheds, three major rivers and a network of tributaries, flooding is an ever present year-round problem. Growth and development over the past two decades has exacerbated historic drainage woes and flooding destruction.

The landmark year was achieved in no small part through leveraging SMC cash with local, state and federal dollars. The leverage strategy resulted in a remarkable $1 to $8.10 ratio or $784,240 SMC cash plus in-kind services for $6.4 million in 17 cost-share projects. A bold part of the leverage strategy was spelled out in a flood hazard mitigation program where 28 homes and eight parcels have been acquired from willing sellers. With federal funds as the backbone, people in floodprone homes in the Wauconda area have been relocated and will continue to be relocated.

Perhaps less dramatic, but important nonetheless, has been cost-sharing and technical assistance provided seven county entities such as streambank stabilization and added stormwater storage capacity.

Aside from visible accomplishments, SMC has gained the respect of builders and municipal officials, two segments of the commission constituency that have been most skeptical of the goals and aims of regional stormwater management.

Overall, SMC leadership is vested a board of commissioners, a professional staff of 14 headed by Director Ward Miller and a technical advisory committee which includes developer executives, planners and consultants. They deserve congratulations for a job well done. There is no question in our mind that the commission's budget of $1.4 million for 1999 was among county government's best spent dollars.

Bulging coffers a dubious benefit

Neighboring villages long have been envious of Gurnee's lucrative amusement tax, a $1 million or so a year tap on admissions to Six Flags Great America. Now they must be fairly drooling over new "found money" from extra taxes levied on golf rounds, theater tickets, ice skating and other for-profit events where admission is charged. The new revenue, collected since Jan. 1, 1999, amounts to roughly an additional $1 million.

In expanding the tax base, Gurnee officials always have argued that it's good for the community because non-residents pay the bulk of an additional cost of having fun. All well and good. But the bulging amusement tax coffers are the source of increased questions from electors wondering, "So what? What's in it for me?"

Trustee Kristina Kovarik explained the growing complaint as disenchantment with problems like traffic congestion and loss of privacy. Residents want to know what they personally get out of the increased revenue, Kovarik opined. Good question. The usual response of better services and lower village taxes doesn't always fly anymore.

What is happening is that policy makers are scurrying about searching for ways to spend the income. It's the old story of what is one man's boon is another man's bane. Sort of like arguing that living close to O'Hare is neat because of the advantages of world class transportation. Oh?

Doubtlessly, Gurnee village officials didn't anticipate the headaches associated with developing new revenue sources. Sometimes being wealthy isn't all that much fun.

VIEWPOINT

Avocado fridges will live forever

Amateur historians have kicked off a project in Rolling Meadows that at the same time has quickened the heartbeat of senior citizens and left Baby Boomers and Gen Xers scratching their heads.

They aim to preserve for posterity their "dream house," the All-American ranch style that provided affordable living quarters for millions of World War II veterans and their growing families in the 1950's. Younger residents are wondering, "What's the point?"

At stake is the historical significance of 1,200 square feet of basic shelter on one floor that sold for $12,000 or less that could be purchased with $3,000 down and a mortgage costing about $75 per month. According to pioneer ranch home owners in the Cook County suburb, now in their 70s, there is a feeling that they spawned an era and made architectural history. OK. Maybe they did.

While acknowledging that there probably are dozens of ranch home owners in our community who don't consider their residences museum pieces, the thought comes to mind about a full-scale replica, "Why not?" As the Rolling Meadows plan unfolds, a reproduction of a 1953 ranch model will be situated as a monument to a time when home ownership was rare and a first-time experience for city flat and apartment-dwellers yearning for something with a white picket fence around it they could call their own.

In Rollins Meadows alone, legendary builder Kimball Hill put up about 6,000 of the inexpensive boxy, single story dwellings laid out cookie-cutter style in fields where corn was grown the year before.

Hill was so successful that he quickly fostered imitators all over the country. In Lake County, the mass builders of the 50s and 60s included Harold Dato, Wauconda; Art Seekatz, Round Lake and Grayslake; Mort Engle, Lake Villa; Lindenhurst and Grayslake; John Rule, Wildwood and Fox Lake Hills, and the fast-talking, fast-moving team of Barney Loeb and Quinn Hogan, who perfected assembly line home construction in Round Lake Beach and then moved the system to Vernon Hills. They and others put up thousands of ranches and variations like the raised ranch and the split level. Builders in those days didn't have the vocabulary for a two-story Colonial. And they were in business to make money, not history.

Artifacts now are being sought to round out furnishings in the replica ranch which, to be authentic, ought to have an avocado refrigerator, burnt orange sponge rubber sofa with pool-cue legs poking at the asphalt tile floor, bunk beds in the children's bedrooms, wall shelving mounted on brackets and lamps hanging from swinging mounts. Oh yes, don't forget the Muntz TV in the corner. And the Brady Bunch touch of elegance, shag carpeting.

Those of us who lived through Phase I of the ranch era, tend to forget the little houses resembled military BOQ's. Original ranches were situated on relatively cheap large lots. Now we have large houses on small high priced lots. The original ranches were surrounded by lots of grass. Landscaping by today's standards was non-existent, unless you considered three pfitzers under the trademark picture window facing the street to be landscaping.

Despite the genuine enthusiasm surrounding the Rolling Meadows concept of capturing history, it's doubtful whether the restoration idea will catch on in our town or neighboring communities. We're not sure looking in a mirror is all that much fun.

Something's hatching

Once ticketed for oblivion, the Spring Grove Fish Hatchery is getting new life with an infusion of public moneys. A whopping $526,000 will be spent this year to rehabilitate the facility opened in 1914. Located off Rte. 12 south of the Wisconsin state line, the hatchery is noted for raising walleyes that thrive in local waters, murky as it is sometimes.

Senate business

Sarah Karlovics was the key for arranging a speech Thursday night at Bittersweet Golf Club, Gurnee, by U.S. Sen. Peter Fitzgerald (R-Ill.) Sarah and her husband, Peter, an attorney with the Cook County State's Atty's. office, are Gurnee residents and she's on the Fitzgerald staff in Chicago. The conservative senator, biggest political name ever to appear before the Warren Township Republican Club, had no difficulty attracting a capacity audience estimated at well over 100.

Princely office

Martin Touhy, the Libertyville developer, is finding the going easier rehabbing the Princess Restaurant on S. Milwaukee Ave. than gaining approval for state funds to be used for the proposed Multi-University at Lakehurst Shopping Center. The former eatery is being turned into an office building and is expected to be ready for occupancy well before a permanent location is selected for the university site.

One man's family

Sadie, the golden retriever puppy in our household, isn't the first dog to make a meal out of her master's eye glass frames. "Happens all the time," an optometry technician explained during a visit for replacements.

PARTY LINES

PARTY LINES, THE LAKE LAND NEWSPAPERS' COLUMN OF POLITICAL OPINION, IS PREPARED FROM STAFF REPORTS.

Grever all smiles, bidding for re-election

Surviving a challenge of his nominating petition on non-residence grounds, veteran County Board Rep. Robert 'Bob' Grever (R-Kildeer) is all smiles again as he campaigns for another term.

The challenge by three Elia Township voters grew out of Grever's contentious divorce proceedings with his wife, Ruth. The veteran politician, who also is supervisor of Elia Township and building inspector of Hawthorn Woods, proved to the Lake County Electoral Board that he still has sufficient ties to the home he owns to substantiate residency in District 19.

Grever's next hurdle will be the March 21 primary to beat back challenges from Bruce Hansen, a Zion school teacher who represented southwest Lake County on the County Board before single member districts were established a decade ago, and Michael S. 'Mike' Talbett, an attorney and first term Lake Zurich trustee.

Talbett might have hurt his chances by championing a utility tax plan to fund a new police station that was quashed over the holidays. While Talbett was pushing the ill-fated tax and Hansen was trying to revive his political career, Grever, 64, staged the biggest and most successful senior citizens Christmas party in Elia Township history. Seniors are the core of his support, helping to trounce popular Jim Johnson, retired school principal and former village official, four years ago.

So there's good reason for Grever, a former County Board chairman, to be smiling.

Space odyssey

Unconfirmed sightings have been reported of space ships piloted by former County Board Chairman, Bob Depke and ex-County Board Rep. Ed Fojtik hovering over the campaign control central of controversial Fox Lake Mayor Jim Pappas. The crafts are said to be delivering supplies and manpower to Pappas for his County Board campaign.

Newby: Expecting a gentlemanly transition to mayoral chair

Forgetting politics

Three industry professionals will be talking about golf instead of politics at the next meeting of the Legislative Breakfast Club sponsored by State Rep. Andrea Moore (R-Libertyville). Slated for 7:30 a.m. Monday, Jan. 24 at Condell Conference Center, information on the 2000 U.S. Women's Open will be delivered by Tourney Director Peter deYoung. The "no politics" rule will be continued by Rob Gray and Cece Durbin describing what's in store for the week of July 17 at the Merit Club, the plush private layout on Milwaukee Ave.

Heir apparent

Don Newby, long-time Village of Round Lake trustee is getting positioned to succeed Mayor Jim Lumber in 2001 municipal balloting. The transition is expected to be orderly, unlike skirmishing already taking place in a number of other county communities.

Geo likes Shawn

State Sen. Adeline Geo-Karis (R-Zion) has accepted the job of co-chairing the 10th Congressional District campaign of Shawn Margaret Donnelly, one of 12 Republicans in the chase. Geo-Karis is teamed with another Illinois General Assembly veteran Margaret Parcels, who will handle the Cook County portion of the district. Parcels at one point was mentioned as a possible candidate herself, but has decided to stay on the sidelines. Geo-Karis is emphatic that it will take a woman to beat State Rep. Lauren Beth Gash (D-Highland Park). Donnelly, who has taken up residence in Libertyville, is the only woman in the GOP field.

North Shore event

Congressman John Porter (10th-Illinois) will address the annual membership meeting and tea of the women's Republican Club of the 10th District at 1 p.m., Friday, Jan. 28 at the Sheraton North Shore Hotel, 933 Skokie Blvd., Northbrook. The meeting is open to all interested women.

The fascinating world of twins

At a family wedding reception, my son-in-law Mick strolled over and visited our table. (At least, I thought it was Mick.)

Then he began asking questions:

"What kind of work did you do before you retired?" (Newspaper work.)

"I hear you live in Antioch. How do you like it?" (Love it.)

When he left, I said to my wife, "Why was Mick asking those things? He knows all about me."

And my wife said, "You dope, that wasn't Mick, that was Rick."

It was the first time I had met the twin brother, and all the while I thought I was talking to Mick.

For Christmas, I bought Mick a coffee-table book, "The Book of Twins," by Debra and Lisa Ganz.

Along with movie star Tom Berenger, they own a New York restaurant staffed mostly by identical twins. That gimmick has won them appearances on national television shows such as "Oprah" and "Live with Regis and Kathie Lee."

The Ganz sisters write: "Being a twin means having the kind of permanent, unconditional best friend other people spend their whole lives looking for. It is seeing your smile flash on another's face."

"Once, when we were little, our mother gave us $5 each, turned us loose in a mall and gave us 10 minutes to buy ourselves presents. We came back with the exact same doll."

Their book tells about identical twins who have switched dates, twins who cut each other off in mid-sentence and finish each other's thoughts.

Some report having the same dreams on the same night. Sometimes, a twin can sense from miles away when something isn't right with the other.

As toddlers developing their speech, they often concoct a secret language that even their mother can't understand.

Among the 38 sets of identical twins included in the book are Charles and Eugene Morgenthau, born in 1904. They still play bridge every week and talk on the phone twice a day.

"Each of us did half the homework, then copied off the other guy," remembers Charles.

They almost didn't get to take their marvelous 96-year trip together. Says Eugene: "We nearly died when we weighed three pounds at birth, but the doctors gave us each a drop of whiskey every afternoon and we made it."

Also in the book are Alexandra Paul, the actress from television's "Baywatch," and her identical twin, Caroline, a writer and San Francisco firefighter.

Says Caroline: "My twin provides all the connection and comfort that we invoke from the fairy godmother, the guardian angel, the imaginary playmate, the best friend and, finally, the soulmate."

Identical twins Ronde and Tiki Barber are football players from Virginia. They had never been apart for more than four days until they were drafted in 1997 by opposing professional teams. Tiki is a running back for the New York Giants and Ronde a defensive back for the Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

Say it's the Super Bowl, late in the fourth quarter, would Ronde tackle Tiki to win the game?

"I'd go for it," insists Ronde, but their mom, Geraldine, doesn't think so.

"Ronde would probably just sort of gently push Tiki out of bounds," she says.

The tobacco settlement—cutting through the smoke

By April, Illinois will have received $400 million as its early share of the over $9 billion it is expected to get over the next 25 years from the tobacco settlement. Almost every state participated in the negotiations against five tobacco companies which will net $206 billion across the country over the long haul.

Each state will determine how it will spend the funds, but it is fairly certain that Illinois will create a special fund so that the monies can be invested while the legislature determines how the monies will be used. Hopefully, the bulk of the money will be used for public health related purposes.

This sounds like "a great deal" for the public and for taxpayers, but let's put it into perspective. It was 1964, a long 35 years ago, when the Surgeon General linked tobacco smoking to cancer. In spite of the warning, and it was printed on cigarette packages, people continued to smoke, the tobacco industry continued in "denial," and lung cancer continued to increase.

It reminds me of where we were for many years with asbestos, where the manufacturer denied that the product had any link to cancer. We will never know how many people died from asbestosis. Finally, the cancer link was exposed, too late for too many.

The "battle with tobacco," despite the settlement, is taking longer than the asbestos fight, and that is simply because it's about "big money." As long as people will continue to smoke, no matter the consequences, the issue will continue to "burn."

Like asbestos, the battle "against tobacco" had to be waged through the courts. We talk about society being "too litigious," but many of our health and safety matters would not have been resolved if it were not for legal disputes and the courts.

SEEING IT THROUGH

On that score, though, I believe that the public has a score to settle with lawyers. Forty-six state attorneys general across the country, joined in the suits against five tobacco companies. Most of those attorneys general hired private law firms to represent them in the deliberations or negotiations.

For example, Illinois Attorney General Jim Ryan hired two law firms, one a Seattle firm and one an Illinois firm, where our good friend, and his, former State's Attorney and U.S. Attorney Fred Foreman, is a member. Those two firms asked for a whopping $400 million as their "cut" of the settlement. An arbitration panel whittled it down to a "measly" $121 million. In slashing the amount, the panel said that the two firms did very little to advance the case to trial in Illinois, didn't take any depositions nor submit any hours for the work that they did.

In Wisconsin, three private law firms from the state entered into an agreement with the tobacco companies for $75 million in fees. That amounted to $3,000 an hour for 24,895 hours that they claimed to have spent on the case. So, you can go state by state and figure that certain law firms did quite well on the tobacco settlement.

Even though the law firms will be paid from a separate fund established by the tobacco companies and in no way jeopardizes the amount that will be awarded to the states, it raises the question of proportionality. Considering the many years that the public has been at a health risk, the lawyers seem to have fared better than the public. I haven't checked, but I imagine the lawyers' fees will be paid "up front," and not over a long period of time, like the settlement "with the public."

Some of the tobacco companies are taking on a new strategy. They can't be in denial any longer and they are taking the position that anyone who smokes their product is doing so at their own health risk. That doesn't mean that they all of a sudden are being "nice guys." That means that they are, if you will pardon the expression, "covering their own butts."

In other words, the companies are telling you, "we told you so, and if you continue to smoke, it's at your own risk." Then, if you find that you have health problems due to smoking they will try to escape liability saying that you smoked voluntarily "after our warnings."

Have you noticed, too, where the tobacco companies seem to be tabbing in new marketing programs? They are promoting their products in the foreign markets, where the health issues have not flared as much.

In spite of the large settlement, I believe that tobacco companies, not withstanding their new strategies, will face many more court challenges in the future from individuals. The day may come when tobacco products, like asbestos, will "go up in smoke."

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Where's the balance in budget?

A recent newspaper article headlines an increase of over $800 billion in the projected Federal budget surplus. What does this mean? It means that the budget has been balanced "on the backs" of VETERANS. Doesn't this outrage you?

And the trend continues. VETERANS are being denied treatment. Attempts are made to kick VETERANS out on the street. And there still are the insidious violations of the entitlements of VETERANS such as categories, means tests, co-pays, priority groups and the like.

These are the things that we should be fighting.

At a recent Stakeholders' Advisory Council Meeting, a proposal was made concerning the application of Medicare benefits to pay for the treatment of VETERANS. Since that has been brought to the table, such a proposal only "gives aid and comfort to the enemy." There should be no affirmation of the policy that a VETERAN should pay for the entitlement—a VETERAN should not have to pay for something that is compensation—something that was earned. Advocating that any insurance program should pay for the health care of a VETERAN would be an irresponsible action and would be falling into the trap that has been set by the Washington bureaucrats.

This is a proposal that we should be fighting.

The "spin-meisters" have been active since the Options Study was released.

We know what we must do. It is a matter of just doing it.

Hero is dead and community mourns

I was saddened to learn of the death of one of our community's true heroes. He will be missed by all of us. He was a great leader in a time when heroes were rare.

His background was a little vague. No one seems to remember just when he came to town. However, from the day he arrived he pitched in, helped out and accomplished the near impossible. His word was good, he was a friend to all and you could always count on him.

Yes, we will miss him dearly. There isn't one school, church or organization in this community who didn't receive his gracious help.

This great hero I write about is "Someone Else." Whenever there was a tough job to do we'd say, "get someone else to do this job." And Someone Else would get it done.

Someone Else was one of our most consistent financial contributors. When the Chamber of Commerce had a project or the United Way had a need, we'd rely on Someone Else to make up the shortfall.

When the hospital needed a volunteer or the Lion's Club needed a committee chair, Someone Else would step right up. When a really dirty job had to be done we'd quickly point to Someone Else.

But now our great community hero is dead. Will our community stumble? Will we lose our momentum? Or, will someone take his place? Will that someone be you? Could you step into Someone Else's shoes?

An issue of responsibility

This apocryphal little story does hold a message for all of us. We have a responsibility to serve our communities, as well as care for our personal interests.

Successful communities depend on dedicated volunteers to ensure their long-term viability. For business owners, helping create a dynamic, progressive and healthy growth environment also helps the bottom line.

Over the years I've watched the dynamics of many successful community development and economic development activities. One of the common factors you'll always find is a committed core of leaders. Now that Someone Else is gone will you step up and help out?

The reward of service

Many businessmen and women find that volunteering some time outside of their business can be a rewarding break. Many find volunteer service a great way to meet new potential customers. Often they help their businesses as they help their communities.

Others find that when they accept service roles they meet new folks with positive attitudes, fresh perspective and useful ideas. They often return to work renewed with fresh enthusiasm and vigor.

Perhaps the biggest reward is to know that your efforts may be helping thousands of other people. Most charitable organizations depend heavily on volunteers to defray costs and broaden their program of work.

You are as important as Anyone Else. Now that our old friend Someone Else is gone, won't you take his place. Someone once said that heavy loads were lightened by

New microbrew has market momentum

Chain O' Lakes beer celebrates area's heritage both in the product and on the label

By STEVE PETERSON
Staff Reporter

When next boating season begins, boaters along the Chain O' Lakes will have a new landmark to call their own.

This "landmark" is of the liquid variety—a microbeer that hit the marketplace this winter. It is called Landmark Cream Ale.

"It began in 1994. Jason Baker, a graduate school student at Harvard University, and I were in the brewing business and everyone who tried it, liked it," Mark Ganong said.

Two years later, Ganong and his wife, Tina, had a strong ally in their effort to perfect the product. Karl Strauss, a beer expert who is retired, signed on as a consultant. Strauss had worked for Pabst Brewing Co. for 44 years and has consulted for many microbrews.

"He has a very strong background in the beer industry. He knows more about beer in his sleep than most people do awake," Ganong said.

Tina Ganong had much input as to marketing and quality control, Mark said.

A Minnesota brewery was selected as well as a local warehouse. The operation means much commuting between Illinois and Minnesota for Fox Lake-based Ganong, who is 42.

Ganong is a fan of the Chain O' Lakes heritage. The beer bottle contains a map of the area, with all lakes and a small history of the Chain included.

"Midwinter is the worst season for the beer industry, but we chose that intentionally. We wanted to give people on the Chain O'Lakes their own beer. We are licensed to sell it from Gurnee to Richmond. We believe we have just scratched the surface. Every time I think I have most of the ground covered, there is another one down the road," Ganong said.

After research and the beer distributing license procedure, the Ganongs selected Cold Springs, Minn. as a brewery. It is a northern Minnesota brewery with a heritage dating back to 1857.

One local establishment, Jimmy V's of Fox Lake, already carries the product. The owner has seen many a microbrews come and go.

"It's great—it is one of few microbrews that I like its chances. We are already carrying the samples," said Jimmy Valenziano, bar owner.

For more information on Landmark Brewing Company, call 356-7042.

390-acre parcel sold in Barrington Hills

The Alexander McArthur Trust, administered by First American Bank, accepted a sealed bid offer for parcels A, B and C of a 430-acre parcel of land auctioned in Barrington Hills, by Sheldon Good & Company.

Located near the intersection of Haeger's Bend and Spring Creek Rd., the land was sold to a residential/golf course developer. According to Steven Good, president of Sheldon Good and Company, the land will be developed into a single-family golf course community. The name of the buyer and selling price are being withheld per terms of the sale.

"It was one of the largest tracts of land ever to be offered for sale in Barrington Hills. The land was a prime piece of real estate with rolling terrain, gravel and asphalt streets and private wells," said

Good. "Some of the biggest names in real estate expressed interest in this land. It was a hotly pursued bidding contest."

Good noted, "Sheldon Good & Company has a solid track record for selling similar parcels of land in Illinois, including the largest remaining development parcel in Park Ridge, the Highland Park Country Club, and the former Marshall Field Estate in Lake Forest."

The auction program was designed to enable the property to be purchased as either a single parcel or as multiple parcels. Parcel D, a 40-acre site on the north side of the property, remains for sale. For further information on Parcel D, please contact David Schy with Sheldon Good & Company at (312)630-0915. The sale will be on a negotiated basis.

Phosphate partnership records special charges

Phosphate Resource Partners Limited Partnership announced that it will record estimated special charges totaling $85 million, or $0.82 per unit, in the fourth quarter of 1999.

The Northbrook-based partnership said the charges result from a non-cash loss from the previously disclosed exit of an oil and gas exploration and development program and PLP's share of rightsizing and restructuring of IMC-Agrico Company's phosphate business announced separately by IMC Global, PLP's administrative managing general partner and 51.6 percent owner.

IMC-Agrico is a joint venture partnership formed in 1993 between PLP and IMC Global. PLP's ownership of IMC-Agrico is 41.5 percent.

The phosphate charges primarily include asset write-offs associated with previously announced closures of the Nichols, Payne Creek and Noralyn facilities, as well as costs for job eliminations, facility demolition and closure, and environmental remediation.

The cash impact of the fourth quarter special charges is projected to be about $22 million, with approximately $14 million affecting 2000. Annual savings, beginning in 2000, are estimated to be about $20 million, or $0.19 per unit.

"This comprehensive and aggressive phosphate program is very strong and necessary medicine to take during this difficult industry climate, including a weak North American farm economy and significantly depressed phosphate selling prices," said Douglas A. Pertz, President and Chief Executive Officer of IMC Global.

Phosphate Resource Partners Limited Partnership is engaged in the production and sale of phosphate crop nutrients and animal feed ingredients.

Walgreen Co. reports record sales, earnings for first-quarter 2000

Walgreen Co. announced record sales and earnings for the first quarter of fiscal 2000.

Earnings for the Deerfield-based drug store chain's quarter ending Nov. 30 were up 22.9 percent to $128 million or 13 cents per diluted share, from $104 million or 10 cents per diluted share in the same quarter a year ago.

Sales for the first quarter increased 20.1 percent to a record $4.8 billion. Total sales in comparable stores (those open more than a year) were up 13.5 percent in the quarter.

Prescriptions, which accounted for 55.3 percent of sales in the quarter, climbed 26.3 percent. Prescription sales in comparable stores rose 20.7 percent in the quarter. Third party plans now account for approximately 85 percent of all prescription sales.

CEO L. Daniel Jorndt attributed the quarter's record earnings to strong pharmacy and general merchandise sales and good expense control. First quarter selling, general and administrative costs dropped 54 basis points, from 22.56 to 22.02 as a percent to sales.

"Expenses as a percent to sales continue to fall as they're spread over a larger store base," said Jorndt. "Most important is our ability to pay as we go for the greatest expansion in our 99-year history while continuing to post record earnings. We opened 94 stores in our first quarter—that's more store openings than we had in an entire year a decade ago."

Walgreens net store gain (after store closings and relocations) of 73 stores in the first quarter far outpaced its competitors' net new store growth. Plans call for 450 new stores in fiscal 2000, with a net gain of 350 stores. By this spring, Walgreens will reach its long-stated goal of opening its 3,000th store in the year 2000.

More than 60 percent of Walgreens locations are now convenient, freestanding stores; over 1,600 offer drive-thru pharmacy service; and nearly 2,700 provide on-hour photo finishing.

In Oct., Walgreens launched its totally redesigned Internet pharmacy at walgreens.com. The new site provides patients with the most comprehensive list of key features at one online pharmacy, including access to your personal Walgreens prescription history through a secure, password-protected area, and health and wellness information from Mayo Clinic.

President David Bernauer said, "Today, our Internet pharmacy is processing more than 2,000 prescriptions a day. Although some patients take advantage of our mail delivery service, the vast majority choose to pick up their prescription at their local Walgreens retail store. This proves the clicks-and-mortar concept that we believe gives us a distinct advantage in the Internet arena."

Bernaer added, "Pharmacy patients now have access to Walgreens any way they wish: in our stores, which cover the broadest geographic base of any drugstore chain; at the drive-thru pharmacy; over the phone; via the Internet; and at any time of day or night at more than 640 24-hour pharmacies, the most in the industry."

At Nov. 30, Walgreens operated 2,894 drugstores in 40 states and Puerto Rico, versus 2,612 a year ago.

5 tips for parents with overweight children

People may find it hard to believe that children need a diet and fitness plan. It's a common misconception that growing kids can eat anything and will stay healthy because they naturally enjoy running around and being active.

According to the National Institute of Diabetes and Digestive and Kidney Diseases, one in every five children in the United States is overweight, and that number is growing. Genetic factors are a consideration, but many children are imitating the bad habits they see in Mom and Dad. This includes a poor diet, with a reliance on fast foods or processed foods, and not exercising. The average American child spends around 24 hours a week watching television. The increased popularity of computer and video games means kids may spend even less time doing physical activities.

Just like overweight adults, overweight children are at a greater risk for illness and disease, such as diabetes. Here are some tips for helping kids get fit and stay healthy.

- Support your child. Don't criticize or blame him or her for the problem. Talk with your children about their concerns over weight and health. Teach them to accept and feel good about themselves whatever their body image.

- Change your behavior. Be a role model by paying attention to your own diet and fitness without being obsessed with it. Show your children that you are confident in yourself and your body.

- Get moving. Make exercise a family affair. There are plenty of activities that parents and children can enjoy together, no matter what the athletic abilities are. Plan family outings that include physical activities, such as walking, biking or swimming.

- Practice healthy eating. Families are busier than ever, but that doesn't mean you have to give up nutrition. Many cookbooks feature fast, healthy recipes. Don't restrict certain foods or kids will just want them more. Provide nutritious snacks and teach your children about making healthy food choices on their own.

- Little changes mean a lot. Just a few habit changes in your family can make a big difference. Discourage kids from eating while watching TV or on the computer. Eat as a family as much as possible and encourage kids to eat slowly and learn to enjoy good food. Invite children to participate in food choice and preparation.

For more information on healthy eating and exercise, talk to a registered dietician or professional trainer, particularly one who has experience or expertise with children. If you feel that your child's weight may be causing serious health problems, consult a physician immediately.

Being a role model for proper nutrition and exercise for children is important. Support for an overweight child is also necessary.

It's never too early to start healthy diet and fitness habits with your children, and never too late for you to make the switch to a healthy lifestyle.

Your treatment plan for high blood pressure

Perhaps the doctor's mentioned it. It could be that nagging headache that comes when it's up. Maybe it's hereditary. Blood pressure is easy enough to measure with a blood pressure cuff. We call it high blood pressure when the systolic reading, or top number is greater than or equal to 140, and the diastolic or bottom number is greater than or equal to 90 millimeters of mercury on the blood pressure cuff. It's been called the 'silent disease.' Sometimes it's difficult to convince yourself to take medication for a problem that just — well — isn't a problem. Broken parts require fixing, but if it doesn't feel broke you don't likely feel the need to fix it.

The highest sudden risk posed to people with high blood pressure is the risk of stroke. The risk of heart attack is five times greater than in the regular population. If it doesn't happen, the doctor is issuing idle threats of 'gloom and doom.' If the stroke or heart attack occurs, it's a devastating catastrophe. Acute or sudden events aren't, however, the largest menace. Slow and premature damage to our vital organs is the larger and more devastating concern. Our vision and kidney function are affected by long-term damage to the vessels of those organs. Vessels throughout the entire body are damaged when the heart works harder to pump blood against increased pressure and resistance in high blood pressure.

Estimates of Americans with hypertension run as high as 50 million. Two million new cases are diagnosed each year. Only about half of those diagnosed receive treatment. The vast majority of patients eventually will comply with treatment, however many of the difficulties in receiving treatment persist in spite of available treatment.

Reasons for this seem obvious only when looked at from the patient's perspective. The obstacles? Feeling better, we may believe that treatment is now over. Uncle John has simply stopped taking his prescription or has let them run out. Grandmother feels that since she experiences side effects, that the treatment is worse than the disease and often won't consider asking her doctor for different medication. Dad figures that without symptoms there is no need to treat in the first place. Sister exclaims that she saw a friend go through "the same thing" and in spite of it all, the friend still became quite ill or had a heart attack or a stroke. Uncle Filano explains that if he goes along with taking medicine that this will be the beginning of the end with the doctor going on to treat him with ever-increasing polypharmacy each visit. Harriet may enjoy a weekend drink and feel that medication is totally incompatible with liquor though she doesn't bring herself to ask her doctor about having that one drink. Finally, we all may agree that the medication is too expensive. So many go untreated.

Who can blame them? Doctors routinely have spent large amounts of time and energy telling patients how to solve a challenge or are quick to point out where the patient has failed. Often doctors have changed their minds about what is and isn't good for the patient. It's no mistake that mother or grandmother's advice weighs heavier than doctor's. It shouldn't surprise us. Sharing obstacles to treatment with your doctor can help you and your doctor learn more about your doctor's greatest asset toward getting you on the road to recovery for your hypertension. This assistance is a large step in understanding the behavioral or lifestyle changes that are best for your circumstances.

There is relief from the symptoms of Fibromyalgia

Fibromyalgia Syndrome (FMS) is characterized by the widespread musculoskeletal pain, aching and stiffness, along with sleep disturbances and fatigue. Other symptoms may include: Migraine or tension headaches, Irritable bowel and bladder, TMJ — Painful hinges of the jaw, memory problems, PMS, anxiety/depression. More than ten million Americans suffer from this condition. Sufferers are primarily women between the ages of 20 and 50; however, an alarming number of children and men are now being diagnosed.

Crescendo Salon and Wellness Center offers holistic programs that work to relieve the symptoms of Fibromyalgia and many other chronic conditions.

In the holistic wellness field, the belief is that Fibromyalgia is caused by a recurring virus in the body. This is the same virus that causes Chicken Pox, Cold Sores, Mononucleosis, and Chronic Fatigue Syndrome, among others. When the immune system goes down, the virus manifests itself through Fibromyalgia symptoms.

The first step in treating clients is through a detoxification program. This detoxification cleanses the liver, bowels, kidneys, circulatory system and all other tissues of the body. Detoxification cleanses mucus and other waste from the intestinal tract and prepares the body for the process of wellness. When you encourage the body to release toxins, virus and bacteria, relief from symptoms of illness begins. The next step is a diet of 100 percent nutrition to feed the cells the nutrients they need to regenerate. Exercise, stress relief techniques, massage therapy and calming herbal formulas are other steps in restoring the body to health. Body wraps also help to reduce joint discomfort by combining the use of heat and circulation.

Crescendo's Wellness Program offers a guideline that aids in Fibromyalgia reveals, which includes eating mostly raw fruits and vegetables, whole grains, lean protein, and drinking at least 8 glasses of water a day. Most clients' pain and fatigue begin to diminish within the first several weeks. The immune system begins to function again, lack of sleep begins to fade, pain decreases and energy increases. Holistic treatments provide a healthy alternative to chemical medications that mask symptoms.

Crescendo Salon & Wellness Center will be hosting a free seminar featuring J. Lynn Wilde, N.D., Ph.D. on Jan. 15 at 9 a.m. Learn the only accurate diagnostic means of determining if you have Fibromyalgia and how you could be symptom-free in eight months. Seating is limited, call for reservations at 816-9600.

Sometimes, too much help is not a good thing

Hi Dr. Singer,

Our son is in his first year of Jr. high and is flunking out of almost everything. We were devastated! I have seen a few columns of yours about this type of thing and have a couple questions for you. Since the beginning of my son's educational experience, I have been helping him with his homework almost to the point of doing it myself. If I didn't do it myself, I would give him so much help on it that he wouldn't really have to think. Up until this last school year, it didn't seem to be a big deal, but when he got into Jr. high, all of a sudden I saw

PARENT'S PLACE

him having a great deal of trouble with doing anything on his own and I can't help but wonder if I set him up for this by giving too much help over the years. Did I? My second question is about cognitive skills. Could my son have had these kinds of problems and would that show up as always asking for help from me? If so, what can I do now? I feel horribly guilty and want to see my son succeed. Please help. D.H.

Hi D.H.,

I will give you my thoughts on this but first, I want you to know two things. First, without seeing you and your son in person, telling you exactly what to do would not be appropriate in a column so I hope you will call again and consult with me in person so I can give you more direct help. Secondly, I know you feel guilty and I have met many other parents who feel the same way. I want you to read this column with the understanding that you did the best you could and did what you thought was right. Also you are not alone! Many, many parents do the very thing you describe out of love and concern for their child.

My answers to your questions will not be about looking back and placing blame. Rather, I hope you take my answers as a way to start fresh now so that your son can get on the right track and you can have a closer, more appropriate relationship together. It's definitely not too late.

Regarding your first question: If you have been doing your son's homework for him for a long time, more than likely, it may have had an effect on his ability to handle new things and new difficulty levels. Kids do learn to handle the harder work by doing the material before it.

Let me give you a comparison. We have a puppy that has gotten a cut on her paw on a few of our recent walks. She didn't step on anything. It just got sore from walking. Well, being the caring and overprotective person that I am, I wanted to rub some vitamin E oil on her footpad to make it better. Prior to doing that, I made sure to call our vet to be sure it was the right thing to do because I wasn't quite sure. The vet told me that it was not a good idea and that those cuts would scab over and make her feet tougher. Of course, she wanted me to clean the wound etc. If I would have done what felt good to me and her at the time, I would have made her feet weaker for the future. The toughening-up is the key to success. The calluses make us strong. The same is true of your child's academic experiences. The more chance he has to work on the hard stuff and get it right because he did the work, the less the fear will be in facing new challenges and the more he will feel capable of handling more. The key is to make sure that the difficulty goes up in small increments and not large jumps.

Another important thing for you and other people to know is this: most of the kids that I see in my program seem to come in at the transition times. What I mean by this is kids who have just gotten into real school work for the first time (first grade,) the beginning of Jr. high, the beginning of high school or the beginning of college. As you might already know, each time a child makes the transition to a new level of school, the difficulty goes up and the "spoon feeding" goes down. By the time kids reach Jr. high, the spoon goes in the drawer permanently and the kids are asked to do things very independently. If a child has had cognitive processing difficulties all along that have been masked by help from parents and teachers, it becomes quite apparent and painful for the child when the independence requirement increases. This is why these transitions can be so tough.

Regarding whether your child has cognitive processing problems or not, I would have to do a screening on him to determine that for sure, but I will tell you what I have seen happen with other people who have experienced what you have said. Many kids that I have seen, started with some cognitive deficits which made them ask for help from parents, teachers, etc.

As I said before, I think the key for you will not be in blaming yourself or looking back. I think your key is to get him screened, find out if he does have any cognitive processing problems and then start him on a very specific, structured, training program to train him how to take on the work on his own, without fear. Without training these skills back into shape, kids can have a very hard time getting on track. This is really the heart of what I do in my program, so this space won't be adequate to explain it fully here. Suffice it to say that I help kids and parents learn how to let the child take on the hard stuff without flinching. I want these kids to be able to look at the next upcoming challenge and say to themselves, "I know I can do this!" That is my goal for every kid that I see.

I wish you luck and again hope you will call again.

Safeguard the quality of life for children with disabilities

There are 14.7 million children and adults with disabilities, but only a small fraction of their families have taken steps necessary to protect them from an uncertain financial future. At the same time, a reduction in government benefits and a longer life expectancy for the disabled mean more years of financial dependence and less money available to fill this need.

Families of children with disabilities often face a wide disparity between their needs and financial preparedness to care for loved ones, much due to a lack of education and knowledgeable financial advisor on the issues these families face. A child with disabilities may need your help for the rest of his or her life. Because you may not always be able to personally provide it, a plan for the future is critical.

All parents have hopes for their children's future. But when a child has a disability, a parent's concerns take on a special urgency. You worry about who will care for your child if you are no longer able to, and where he or she will live. You wonder whether he or she will have the resources to sustain a decent quality of life. The issues involved can be complicated, but you can create a plan that is both comprehensive and effective.

A Five-Step Plan

Consider this five-step plan to ensure that your child or grandchild receives the best care throughout his or her life:

1. Prepare a Letter of Intent. A letter of intent is written by parents or other family members to describe the child's history, current status and what future the family hopes for him or her. It should cover such wide-ranging topics as housing/residential care, education, employment, medical history and care, behavior management, social activities and religious preferences, and it should be updated as this information changes. As much as possible, involve the child in preparing this letter, so that his or her preferences and hopes for the future will be represented. While you are living, the letter can be used by lawyers and financial planners to help you draft a plan to ensure your wishes are carried out. If you are become unable to take care of your child, the letter gives future caregivers vital information on how to best meet his or her needs.

2. Choose guardians or advocates.

These people, most often family members, are selected to implement your letter of intent. An advocate is a nonlegal, usually informal position in which the chosen individual can assist the person with disabilities on almost any matter. Guardianship is a court approved legal relationship in which an individual is assigned a specific degree of responsibility for designated matters.

3. Determine the realistic cost of your plan and the resources available.

A financial planner experienced in working with families of children with disabilities can review your letter of intent and help you prepare a detailed financial analysis based on projected costs. You can then review together the resources available to fund your plan. These may include government benefits, your savings, assistance of other family members, your estate, inheritances from other relatives and friends, property, investments, military benefits and insurance.

4. Determine a funding plan. If your child currently receives (or may one day need to depend on) government benefits, it is important to create a plan that will maintain his or her eligibility. (Government benefits can include health care, job training, supported employment, subsidized housing, transportation assistance and personal attendant care, as well as money.) Bequeathing a disabled individual assets worth more than two thousand dollars may eliminate their eligibility for many benefits. The rules of public assistance do allow family to provide some supplementary income and resources to the person with a disability, but the current level of benefits makes supplementation essential to a reasonable quality of life. The regulations are strict, however, so the most reliable way to leave an inheritance to your child with a disability and preserve his or her eligibility might be through a special needs trust.

There are two types of special needs trusts: testamentary trusts created upon the death of the parents and living trusts established while the parents are still living. Living trusts may offer several advantages:

- Families can start putting money into the trust now, as part of a long-term savings program.
- Using trust funds to pay for current expenses is a good tax recordkeeping method.
- Other relatives can gift money to the trust now and gain tax benefits.
- Supplementary assistance to the beneficiary will continue at your death, uninterrupted by any delays for probate and creation of a testamentary trust.

Whatever kind of trust you set up, it must be administered by a trustee, with the special needs person as beneficiary. The trustee has absolute discretion to provide whatever assistance is needed and trust funds must be used for supplementary purposes only.

5. Meet with all involved parties to discuss your plan, and review the plan at least once a year.

Professional help can make the task of ensuring your child's future security easier and more effective. Attorneys and financial planners experienced with families of children with disabilities can provide valuable expertise. Organizations that work with people with disabilities and their families can also provide assistance and advice. Working together, these professionals can help you address the concerns you have about the current and future needs of your family.

Are automobile wrecks a source of TMD?

The stress from an automobile fender-bender and probably not the injuries sustained in the crash, can be a source of temporomandibular joint dysfunction (TMD), says E. Mac Edington, DDS, former president of the Chicago-based Academy of General Dentistry.

The temporomandibular joint is the hinge that connects the lower jaw to the rest of the face. It is the source of chronic facial pain for an unknown number of Americans. TMD describes a variety of conditions that effect jaw muscles, temporomandibular joints and nerves associated with chronic facial pain. Symptoms may occur on one or both sides of the face, head or jaw, or develop after injury.

"Stress is the predominant factor in TMD symptoms," says Dr. Edington. "Unless your jaw or face hits the windshield, the steering wheel, or another object, there is not a physical correlation between TMD and whiplash. As the stress lessens, so will the pain."

Misconceptions about the causes of TMD often prolong suffering. "One misconception is that people believe their teeth should always come together, but in reality, your teeth should only come completely together when you eat or when you swallow," says Dr. Edington.

"However, stress is often responsible for a condition known as bruxism in which people grind their teeth, usually at night when they are asleep. Or some people grind their teeth every time they do the dishes because they hate doing them. The constant grinding stresses the muscles that control the temporomandibular joint."

Dr. Edington says that people who experience head and neck trauma during a car accident often experience stress that causes bruxism and that adds to severity of the injury. "It is a good idea to visit a dentist if you have been in an automobile accident," he says. "Your dentist can fit you with a device that looks very much like a sports mouthguard that you can wear at night and that keeps you from grinding your teeth. It's a valuable investment if you want to avoid the problems associated with TMD."

Dr. Edington also recommends that patients who experience the symptoms of TMD avoid chewing gum, eating softer food to decrease the use of the jaw muscles and avoid activities in which the mouth needs to be opened wide such as singing. He also strongly recommends that TMD sufferers consult their dentist.

How to reduce stress and live longer

What is the single factor that can most shorten your life expectancy? Stress.

According to best-selling author Michael Roizen in 'RealAge: Are You As Young As You Can Be?' having three or more major life events in a one-year period can cause more than 30 years of aging. But for people who have effective strategies, the stress is significantly minimized.

To deal with these concerns is a revolutionary new strategy called EFT (the Emotional Freedom Techniques). By simply tapping on a series of points on the body, you can use these techniques to clear stuck emotions and self-defeating patterns, producing profound breakthroughs. It's usually fast and amazingly effective. And anyone can do it, including children.

Phillip Moutrose, co-author of the newly-released book and tapes 'Getting Thru to Your Emotions with EFT', maps out the following four keys to dealing with stress.

1. Evaluate the circumstances that are creating stress. Review the regular activities of your life and notice where the stress is coming from. Write a comprehensive list of the stressful situations you commonly find yourself in. This new awareness is where healing begins.

2. Find ways to reduce outside pressures. Use an approach like the stress-reducing Emotional Freedom Techniques (EFT) for a precise, easy-to-use way to balance your life.

3. Develop new responses to circumstances that are to remain. Relaxing music and a new attitude can work wonders. Just taking a few deep breaths and walking around a bit may make a big difference.

4. Find more ways to incorporate relaxation and pleasure into your life. This may include doing a regular relaxation process or meditation, walking in nature, taking an occasional bubble bath, having a relaxing massage, allowing an extra ten minutes to get where you need to go.

Phillip Moutrose is the author of the award-winning 'Getting Thru to Kids: Problem Solving with Children Ages 6 to 18' and 'Tips and Tools for Getting Thru to Kids' books. His newest book, co-authored with his wife Jane, is entitled 'Getting Thru to Your Emotions with EFT: Tap into Your Hidden Potential with the Emotional Freedom Techniques'. These are also two demonstration videotapes and two guided visualization audiotapes of the EFT material available directly from Holistic Communications. The books are available at your local bookstore, on the Internet from Amazon.com, or call Holistic Communications 800-431-1579. ### 110 Notices

Thank You!!!

We appreciate all the wonderful people who have continued to place donations in our coin banks at the Round Lake Wal-Mart for the last 3 years.

These donations had assisted pet owners through our various programs, especially low cost spay & neuter.

We were saddened to find 7 of the 8 banks stolen at the time of our December pickup. Please be on the lookout for these banks and call our office.

Thank you again for your past support.

By Nancy Sakol

Q: I recently left college after three semesters because I was not enjoying taking courses that I was not interested in just to get a degree. I told my folks that I didn't think that it was money well spent. Deciding on what classes I would take each semester became a nightmare since I had a difficult time making a decision. It came down to which one would be the lesser of two evils, since none of the required courses seemed to appeal to me. Going to classes that were of no interest to me was boring and left me with hours worth of studying and projects that meant nothing to me and rendered me totally unmotivated. My friends had all gone away to different schools, and although I kept in close touch with them, I can hear how much they are enjoying themselves and talk to me about their course work all the time. Going to classes became increasingly a chore, so I made the decision that, rather than wasting my parents' money, I would at least finish the semester with acceptable grades and go back home. I have started job hunting within the past few weeks and was pleased to find that there is a world of opportunity out there for me. I interviewed with three separate corporations who each invited me back for second and third interviews. Much to my surprise, I am faced with three offers of employment at this time. All the companies have a strong name in their industries, outstanding benefit packages and acceptable starting salaries. Companies one, two and three are all aware that I am interviewing at the others. The problem has now come down to the fact that, now that I have been offered these positions, they all want an answer from me. I have told each one of them that I will have an answer for them by the third week of the month. I originally stated to all of them that I would not wish to start until February 1, which seemed to be acceptable to them. I need to make a decision. The locations of all are within a half-hour drive, so location is not an issue. Benefit packages are all comparable, give or take a few perks, and all are large corporations. I don't know why I am having such a difficult time making a decision. My parents have offered me support in weighing the opportunities. They are getting very frustrated at my lack of motivation to make a decision. Their fear is that all three companies are going to fill the positions with someone else if I don't choose soon. I told them that is not going to happen, and that companies just don't operate that way. They told me I am naive to think so. Now my friend tells me that she once was offered a position with a company that told her they needed a decision by the end of the week. When she tried to call on Friday, the company was already closed. By Monday morning, when she was able to reach the person, the position was no longer available. Now I feel as though I am pressed to make a decision and don't know what to do. Please help. R.I.L., Gurnee

A: If you feel you are pressed to make a decision, make one! Either you pick a company that interests you, or you risk losing all offers. You obviously invested time in all the interviewing that you did. Only you were there at the interviews. It shouldn't be that difficult with three offers on the table—unless, of course, the situation you are faced with is being an indecisive person, afraid of taking a chance. If one of these companies is what you want, and financially you are not concerned about income, then take more time to look. But make sure that is the sole reason you would turn them down and that there is not the question of you being afraid to jump in and give something a try. You have nothing to lose. There are people who would have a difficult time sympathizing with your dilemma. The ball is in your court. Good luck!
